Trump's UK state visit fixed

By STEVE HAWKES

DONALD Trump's first full state visit to Britain in June is expected to be confirmed tomorrow.

White House officials were set to release the first details of his trip, timed to coincide with D-Day's 75th anniversary.

The President is already due to visit France for the commemoration.

The trip is expected to involve an official banquet at Buckingham Palace and a carriage procession in The Mall.

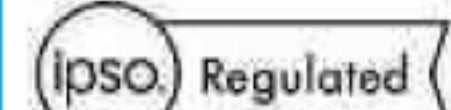

Downing Street held secret talks with the US administration to discuss timings in January.

Mr Trump's visit is certain to spark protests but Defence Minister Tobias Ellwood has urged Commons Speaker John Bercow to allow him to address Parliament to protect our special relationship with the US.

BID TO TOPPLE THERESA

TORIES IN PLOT TO END MAY IN JUNE

EXCLUSIVE by STEVE HAWKES, Deputy Political Editor

THERESA May could be booted out as PM in mid-June under a Tory plan to axe their "one-year safety net" for the party's leader.

The Tories' 1922 Committee is expected to vote on the proposal to allow a no-confidence challenge six months after she survived the last one. It would only be granted if 92 Tories, a third of their MPs, submit a no-confidence letter to backbench "kingpin" Sir Graham Brady.

Currently, the PM cannot face a new challenge for 12 months, meaning she is safe until the end of 2019.

It comes after senior 1922 member Nigel Evans last night publicly called for the PM to go next month over the Brexit mess. He told The Sun: "Reluctantly, I have decided we need fresh leadership." He said she should go on May 23 if European elections have to take place.

Sources claimed Sir Graham will challenge the PM to go by a certain date in face-to-face talks this week.

Separately, furious Conservative grassroots campaigners revealed they will hold an extraordinary general meeting over Mrs May's leadership next month.

More than 70 local association chiefs have signed a petition triggering the move. A senior Tory yesterday admitted: "All this weekend, my constituents haven't wanted to talk about Brexit, their number one concern is getting rid of Theresa May."

Mrs May survived a no-confidence Tory challenge on December 12 by a majority of 83 votes, 200 to 117.

One Tory MP last night branded the move by the 1922 committee "Stalinist", adding: "What happens when a new leader comes in and they decide they don't want him? Will they rewrite the rules again?"

IS-inspired... church bomber

Security services' ten-day

By NICK PARKER

SECURITY services were tipped off about the Sri Lanka attack ten days before, it was claimed last night.

They were told that suicide bombers were planning to hit "prominent churches" but the warnings were not passed to police in time.

Sri Lankan premier Ranil Wickremesinghe acknowledged that "information was there" about possible attacks.

British envoy Baron Marland said: "There is concern here that intelligence showed a dangerous Islamist splinter group was about to attack yet no action was taken."

Yesterday, CCTV emerged of a bomber entering the Katuwapitiya Church minutes before the blast.

Security sources have established that IS-inspired Islamist splinter group National Thowheed Jamaath carried out the attacks.

An Islamist hate preacher, Zahran Hashim, notorious for YouTube video rants, and his disciple, Insan Setiawan, were last night said to have been the suicide bombers at the Shangri-La hotel.

A woman who detonated her suicide vest as police raided a terrorist lair in Colombo on Sunday was said to be Setiawan's wife.

Our brush with killer

A BABY-faced suicide killer ruffled a child's hair as he strolled down the aisle of a packed church — before detonating his bomb bag.

The young terrorist killed 67 worshippers — many of them children — at St Sebastian's church in Negombo.

Witness Dilip Fernando told The Sun: "At the end of the mass my family saw one young man go into the church with a heavy bag."

"He touched my granddaughter's head on the way past. It was the bomber."

Final snap... three of Mr Povlsen's children in Sri Lanka

THREE of the four children of the billionaire boss of British fashion chain Asos were killed in the Sri Lanka horror, it has emerged.

They died while on a family holiday with their Danish fashion tycoon father Anders Holch Povlsen, 46.

Three days before the attacks, Mr Povlsen's daughter Alma shared an Instagram photo of her siblings Astrid, Agnes and Alfred — calling them "three little bears" — in front of a swimming pool lined by palm trees.

The billionaire and his wife Anne, 40, have not said which of their three children died in the attack. Jesper Stubbier, head of communications, for Mr Povlsen's company, Best-seller, said: "Unfortunately, we can confirm that Anders lost three children in the attack."

"We ask you to respect privacy and we therefore have no further comment."

Mr Povlsen is said to be the 304th richest person in the world and worth about £4.5 billion.

He is the biggest shareholder in Asos.com and second biggest shareholder in German firm Zalando.

He has invested his huge wealth to become Scotland's biggest landowner.

Through his company Wildland Ltd, the retail mogul owns 12 estates, including Glenfeshie in the Cairngorms and covering a total of more than 220,000 acres. They have cost more than £100 million.

Mr Povlsen said his love affair with Scotland began in the 1980s during a family holiday to the Highlands, where he spent a summer fly fishing with his younger brother, Niels.

On their website, the couple say they want to restore the Scottish Highlands "to their former magnificent natural state and repair the harm that man has inflicted on them."

They want endangered species — such as the red squirrel, pine marten, Scottish wildcat, capercaillie and black grouse — to thrive again as new woodlands across his estates begin to connect.

Last week, the couple said they wanted their vision for the land to be passed to their four children — making clear their commitment to the community and to the long-term future of the estates.

TWO British victims of the Sri Lanka massacre fled an initial explosion only to be killed by a second blast, it has emerged.

Daniel Linsey, 19, and sister Amelie, 15, were in the Shangri-La hotel in Colombo with dad Matthew when a suicide bomber detonated his device.

Millionaire hedge fund manager Matthew, 61, survived with only cuts to his face.

He said of the first blast: "You can't describe how bad it was. People were screaming. I was with my children."

"I was worried there would be another blast. We ran out — another blast."

"I couldn't move them, they were both knocked out."

He said he was forced to make a decision over which of his injured children to try to save.

Matthew told The Times he believed Amelie had the less severe injuries so he carried Daniel downstairs to an ambulance, leaving her with other survivors.

He added: "I thought my daughter was better off. They sadly both passed away."

They were on the last day of a three-week holiday when Islamist fanatics detonated eight bombs at hotels and churches, killing at least 291 and injuring over 500.

The teenagers' elder brother David, 21, who was not on the holiday, said: "They were in a breakfast restaurant on the third floor when there was the first explosion."

"They tried to run away and out of the hotel. Then there was a second explosion."

He added: "Daniel and Amelie were the most loving people."

"My sister held the whole family together. My brother was the nicest person you could imagine."

"I can't describe just how devastating it is. No one ever thinks this could happen."

"We already miss them so much. My dad seems physically OK but really shocked."

"He's trying to help my mum and younger brother."

Amelie and student Daniel had dual UK/US nationality because their dad is American. His British wife, Angelina, was also not with them in Sri Lanka.

The Linseys died yards from British victims Anita Nicholson, 42, her son Alex, 14, and daughter Annabel, 11. Their father Ben also escaped the Easter Sunday horror with minor injuries.

Firefighter Billy Harrop, 56, and his partner Dr Sally Bradley were named among the Brits who died in the terror attacks. An eighth victim is yet to be identified.

Singapore-based lawyer Ben yesterday paid a moving tribute to his wife and children.

He said: "Mercifully, all three of them died instantly and with no pain or suffering."

"I am deeply distressed at the loss of my wife and children. Anita was a wonderful, perfect wife and a brilliant, loving and inspirational mother to our two wonderful children."

"Alex and Annabel were the most amazing, intelligent, talented and thoughtful children. We shall all miss them dearly."

A doctor told yesterday how a dazed Ben arrived at a Colombo hospital trying to find out what had happened to his family. Pushpa Zoysa said: "I saw him covered in blood walking up and down."

"He spoke to me twice, asking about his family."

"He had blood all over him but he was not injured, apart from a small cut to his ear. He was not running or crying, he was shocked. He was walking around completely alone and I felt sorry for him. But there were so many dead and dying people I didn't have time to speak to him more."

Former firefighter Billy was commended for his courage after the IRA bombing of Manchester in 1996. His and Sally's son Gavin was holidaying in Sri Lanka with them but survived the blasts.

Her brother, former Manchester Withington Labour MP Lord Keith Bradley, said: "This immensely tragic event will be something my family will never truly get over."

"I have lost a sister, who was not only an inspiration to me, but someone that was respected and loved across Greater Manchester."

The death toll from the atrocity includes 39 foreigners. The Islamist cell responsible set off six bombs just before 9am, targeting three busy tourist hotels and three churches packed with worshippers celebrating Easter Sunday. Another two bombs were detonated as police pursued suspects.

A ninth device exploded in a van yesterday as cops tried to defuse it. Police say the terrorists who targeted the Shangri-La booked into room 616 with 55lb of plastic explosives and Islamist pamphlets.

RICH ECO DOCTOR BLASTED

Protests delayed patients

EXCLUSIVE by ROB PATTINSON and JONATHAN REILLY

A WEALTHY NHS doctor charged over the London climate protests was rapped for wasting public cash.

Dr Hayley Pinto, 51, was carried away by cops after lying down to form a road block.

She was condemned after Extinction Rebellion protesters delayed patients reaching hospital and took up stretched cops' time.

Peter Bone MP said: "To take so much police manpower from crimes is madness. It's a waste of public money and a NHS clinician should recognise how important public money is. She's also preventing people from getting treatment."

Extinction Rebellion plan to set up camp in Parliament Square today as MPs return to Westminster after the Easter recess. Cops warned demonstrators must keep off roads.

Addiction psychiatrist Ms Pinto has been charged with obstructing a highway and obstructing police.

Ms Pinto, whose hubby is a GP, travelled from her £650,000 home in Marsham, Norfolk. She owns electric cars worth £80,000 and has a swimming pool in her back garden.

The Norfolk and Suffolk NHS Foundation Trust worker said: "I didn't want to get arrested, I've risked my job. Tidy marches that go along the desired route are ignored."

Lay down in road... Hayley Pinto

Another Extinction Rebellion supporter, Philip Kedge, 50, is a retired police chief inspector in Hampshire.

He said he had joined the protest after deciding not to go to the beach "because do I actually ask: 'Why is the weather so wonderful?'"

More than 100 Extinction Rebellion protesters wrecked family days out by playing dead under Hope, the blue whale skeleton at London's Natural History Museum yesterday.

The Met said 1,065 arrests had been made in the past week over the protests, with 53 suspects charged.

The fast food giant is phasing in paper straws to help the environment. But in an online backlash, customers claim they go soggy and change the taste of drinks.

McDonald's said: "Our straws last 30 minutes in most, if not all liquids."

Coal now a turn-off

UK power stations have gone without coal for the longest period since the Industrial Revolution.

Electricity over Easter was generated by renewable green energy and nuclear power, with no coal burned for 82 hours.

Health Secretary Matt Hancock said: "The UK has cut carbon emissions more than almost anywhere else."

Government plans say all coal-power plants will close by 2025 — while 75 per cent of China's electricity comes from coal.

He said: "The common has been packed. People come in groups of 20 or more and just throw rubbish down even if they are right next to a bin."

Dani bags new man

DYER'S SNOGS FOR BAD BOY

EXCLUSIVE by SIMON BOYLE

LOVE Island's Dani Dyer hugs her new fella just weeks after splitting from coke shame ex Jack Fincham — but he also has a bag of suspicious powder.

Dani and stockbroker Sammy Kimmence were pictured sharing a passionate kiss while out boozing with friends in London.

But the snaps are likely to raise eyebrows after Sammy was also spotted sharing small sachets of a mystery substance with pals while with her in Chelsea's King's Road.

The pair dated for a year before Dani, daughter of EastEnders star Danny, 41, joined Love Island.

Dani, 23, split from Jack, 26, who she won the ITV2 show with last year, after he admitted to The Sun, right, he had been on a cocaine binge. And she and Sammy, also 23, had clearly rekindled their romance as she wrapped her arms around his neck and he playfully grabbed her bottom.

An onlooker said: "Dani couldn't keep her hands off him and the feeling was clearly totally mutual. They kissed for ages before heading off as a group but he seemed to be keen to pass something to one of his male friends before they went."

"Sammy was holding a small sachet of a white or grey powder. It was hard to say what was in the bag but it's not a good look."

The group later headed back home to The Essex House bar and nightclub in Chingford, North East London, until around 10pm before heading off in a cab towards Dani's home. A pal said:

"She never really got over him and they got back in touch quite quickly once she split from Jack."

Dani's representatives declined to comment.

"It isn't like Harry and Meghan didn't know it was Louis's birthday. They have known since he was born last year!"

"It is slightly clumsy news management and will do nothing but add to the narrative that splitting the two households of Cambridge and Sussex will lead to a conflict of interest."

By mid-afternoon, Harry and Meghan had posted nine Earth Day images on their Instagram account to highlight the "opportunity to learn about, celebrate and continue to safeguard our planet, our home". One

Whale wallies

BRITAIN has had enough of childish eco-warriors who'd rather indulge in flashy stunts than deal with reality.

Climate change is one of the biggest issues facing the planet – but the privileged anarchists holding London hostage are doing nothing to tackle it.

While performing their latest stunt – lying underneath the Natural History Museum's famed whale skeleton – they failed to mention that Britain is already a world leader on climate change.

We go days at a time without using a single lump of coal, and our carbon emissions are back at Victorian levels.

It's now developing countries – above all China – that drive global warming.

If we help other nations follow our lead, the problem could be brought under control. But the Extinction Rebellion rabble would rather spout the usual anti-capitalist drivel than engage with real-world solutions.

It's no surprise to see their ringleaders unmasked as middle-class hippies. The likes of Hayley Pinto, an NHS doctor who has splashed £80,000 on electric cars, can afford their virtue-signalling – a criminal conviction will only be a badge of honour to them.

But in the real world, the games these fantasists are playing do nothing to stop climate change. Time to grow up.

Scrambled Brex

FINALLY MPs are getting back to work on Brexit.

It's not a moment too soon after an inexcusable ten-day break. Let's only hope the time off has given the political class time to reflect on just where its behaviour is leading us.

To the Remainers trying to sabotage Brexit altogether: the rebirth of Nigel Farage shows you can't ignore 17.4million voters without provoking a response.

To the ERG hardliners: if you continue to block the only deal on offer, don't be surprised to see the prize of Brexit slip from your hands.

To Theresa May: it's time to name a date for your departure and use your final weeks in power to save your legacy. Looking at new ways to replace the Irish backstop is a good start.

One thing is now crystal clear: if the Tories don't pull together and deliver Brexit, the country will never forgive them.

Saint 'n' sinner

JEREMY Corbyn is often accused of hating this country.

Now his shamolic PR team have managed to get the date of our patron saint's day wrong.

PM URGED TO QUIT AFTER RAMBLE HOL

Do the right thing, Theresa... just walk

TWO years ago, Theresa May returned from a walking holiday in Wales and dropped a bombshell.

She announced a general election which, only a couple of weeks previously, she had insisted she would not call.

As she returns to Downing Street this morning, once again refreshed from the Welsh hills, she needs to make an equally dramatic decision: To resign immediately as Conservative leader and to stay on as Prime Minister only as long as it takes to elect a new leader.

May is far from the first Prime Minister to have demonstrated a loosening grip on reality while ensconced in the Downing Street bunker, but surely even she can see that the game is up.

The dissent towards her in her own party is staggering.

A shocking poll for the Conservative Home website at the weekend revealed that 62 per cent of Conservative Party members are planning to vote for Nigel Farage's Brexit Party in the European elections. This was not a poll of wider Tory voters but of people who pay an annual subscription to the party.

If this group of around 125,000 people are not prepared to vote for their own party, then what chance have the Tories in attracting votes from the wider electorate?

But it gets worse – even elected Tory representatives are planning to rat on their party in the European elections. A Survation poll suggests that four in ten Conservative councillors are planning to back the Brexit Party too.

Loyalty, it used to be said, was the Tories' secret weapon.

Not any more. The party has become like an army whose frontline troops have started burrowing beneath enemy lines – not in order to plant explosives beneath its positions, but in the hope of joining it in its trenches.

No Conservative leader will find it easy to turn around the situation, but at least a new face, with some new ideas and a fresh perspective on how to solve the Brexit impasse, would have a chance.

Anything would be better than being led round and round in circles by a Prime Minister who has become tired and stuck. Every time May comes to the despatch box after some new, devastating vote in the Commons, I find myself thinking: Surely she must have a fresh strategy now.

By ROSS CLARK

Then I find myself groaning to learn that no, still she seems to think that the answer is to keep on plugging her failed deal.

To huge numbers of British people, May has become a large part of the problem.

What was once seen as her greatest asset – resilience – is now seen as plain stubbornness.

It has become impossible to imagine any satisfactory outcome to Brexit until she is gone.

Every day she remains adds fuel to Corbyn becoming PM

Sadly, I fear that May herself cannot see this.

Like John Major in the last, wretched years of his premiership, I fear she has convinced herself that she is an asset to her party and her country when almost everyone else can see that the opposite is true.

As with Major in the mid 1990s, every day that May remains in Downing Street is adding to the scale of defeat the party faces at the ballot box.

The only difference is that then the beneficiary was the moderate Tony Blair. This time around, an unpopular but stubborn Tory leader is adding rocket fuel to the chances of an unreformed Marxist, Jeremy Corbyn, becoming Prime Minister.

I know May is desperate to achieve some sort of legacy before she leaves Downing Street, but if she resists much longer her main achievement will be an indirect one – it will be to let in a Labour government which returns Britain to the sort of punitive tax rates which drove a brain drain of individuals and businesses from the country in the 1970s.

It is a great shame that May did not resign last December, when 117 of her MPs voted against her in a confidence vote. Her margin of victory – she won 63 per cent of votes – would have constituted a substantial mandate in an open leadership contest.

But this was not a leadership contest. It was a no-confidence vote in a sitting Prime Minister, in which anything less than a resounding victory would have been unsatisfactory.

Given that more than 100 Conservative MPs are members of the Government – and were therefore duty bound to support their Prime Minister in a confidence vote – May failed even to carry with her a majority of her backbenchers.

And that was before the multiple Commons defeats for her deal, which have led to open rebellion in the Cabinet.

Were such a vote to be held now, it is inevitable that many ministers who reluctantly backed her in December would no longer feel they needed to do so.

Under the Conservative Party's rules, May cannot be challenged again in a no-confidence vote for a full 12 months after the last one. But there are rumblings to change this rule.

Graham Brady, Chairman of the 1922 Committee, which represents backbenchers, is reported to be planning to visit May next week to tell her to resign before the end of June.

But that won't be soon enough. Before then, the Tories face twin wipeouts in the local and European elections. The latter may be utterly pointless but nevertheless, a derisory performance is still going to be deeply traumatic when it happens.

Theresa May's ministers have dutifully supported her in the past.

Her duty is now to step aside immediately, before she accidentally ends up leading her party to an even greater humiliation in a general election than the one it suffered in 1997.

Cage ex in 4-day cash bid

By ELLIE HENMAN

ACTOR Nicolas Cage's ex Erika Koike is demanding spousal support — despite only being married to him for four days.

The Con Air star, 54, sought an annulment after the pair wed in a boozy ceremony in Las Vegas last month.

Erica, 34, who works as a make-up artist, filed legal documents following his request to part and claimed she had lost out on career opportunities.

Papers from the split reportedly claim that Erica expects Cage to cover her legal fees.

He and Erica had been dating for a year before they tied the knot.

Reports claimed Cage — who has already had three other failed marriages — appeared to be “most likely drunk”.

Anger at farm rave

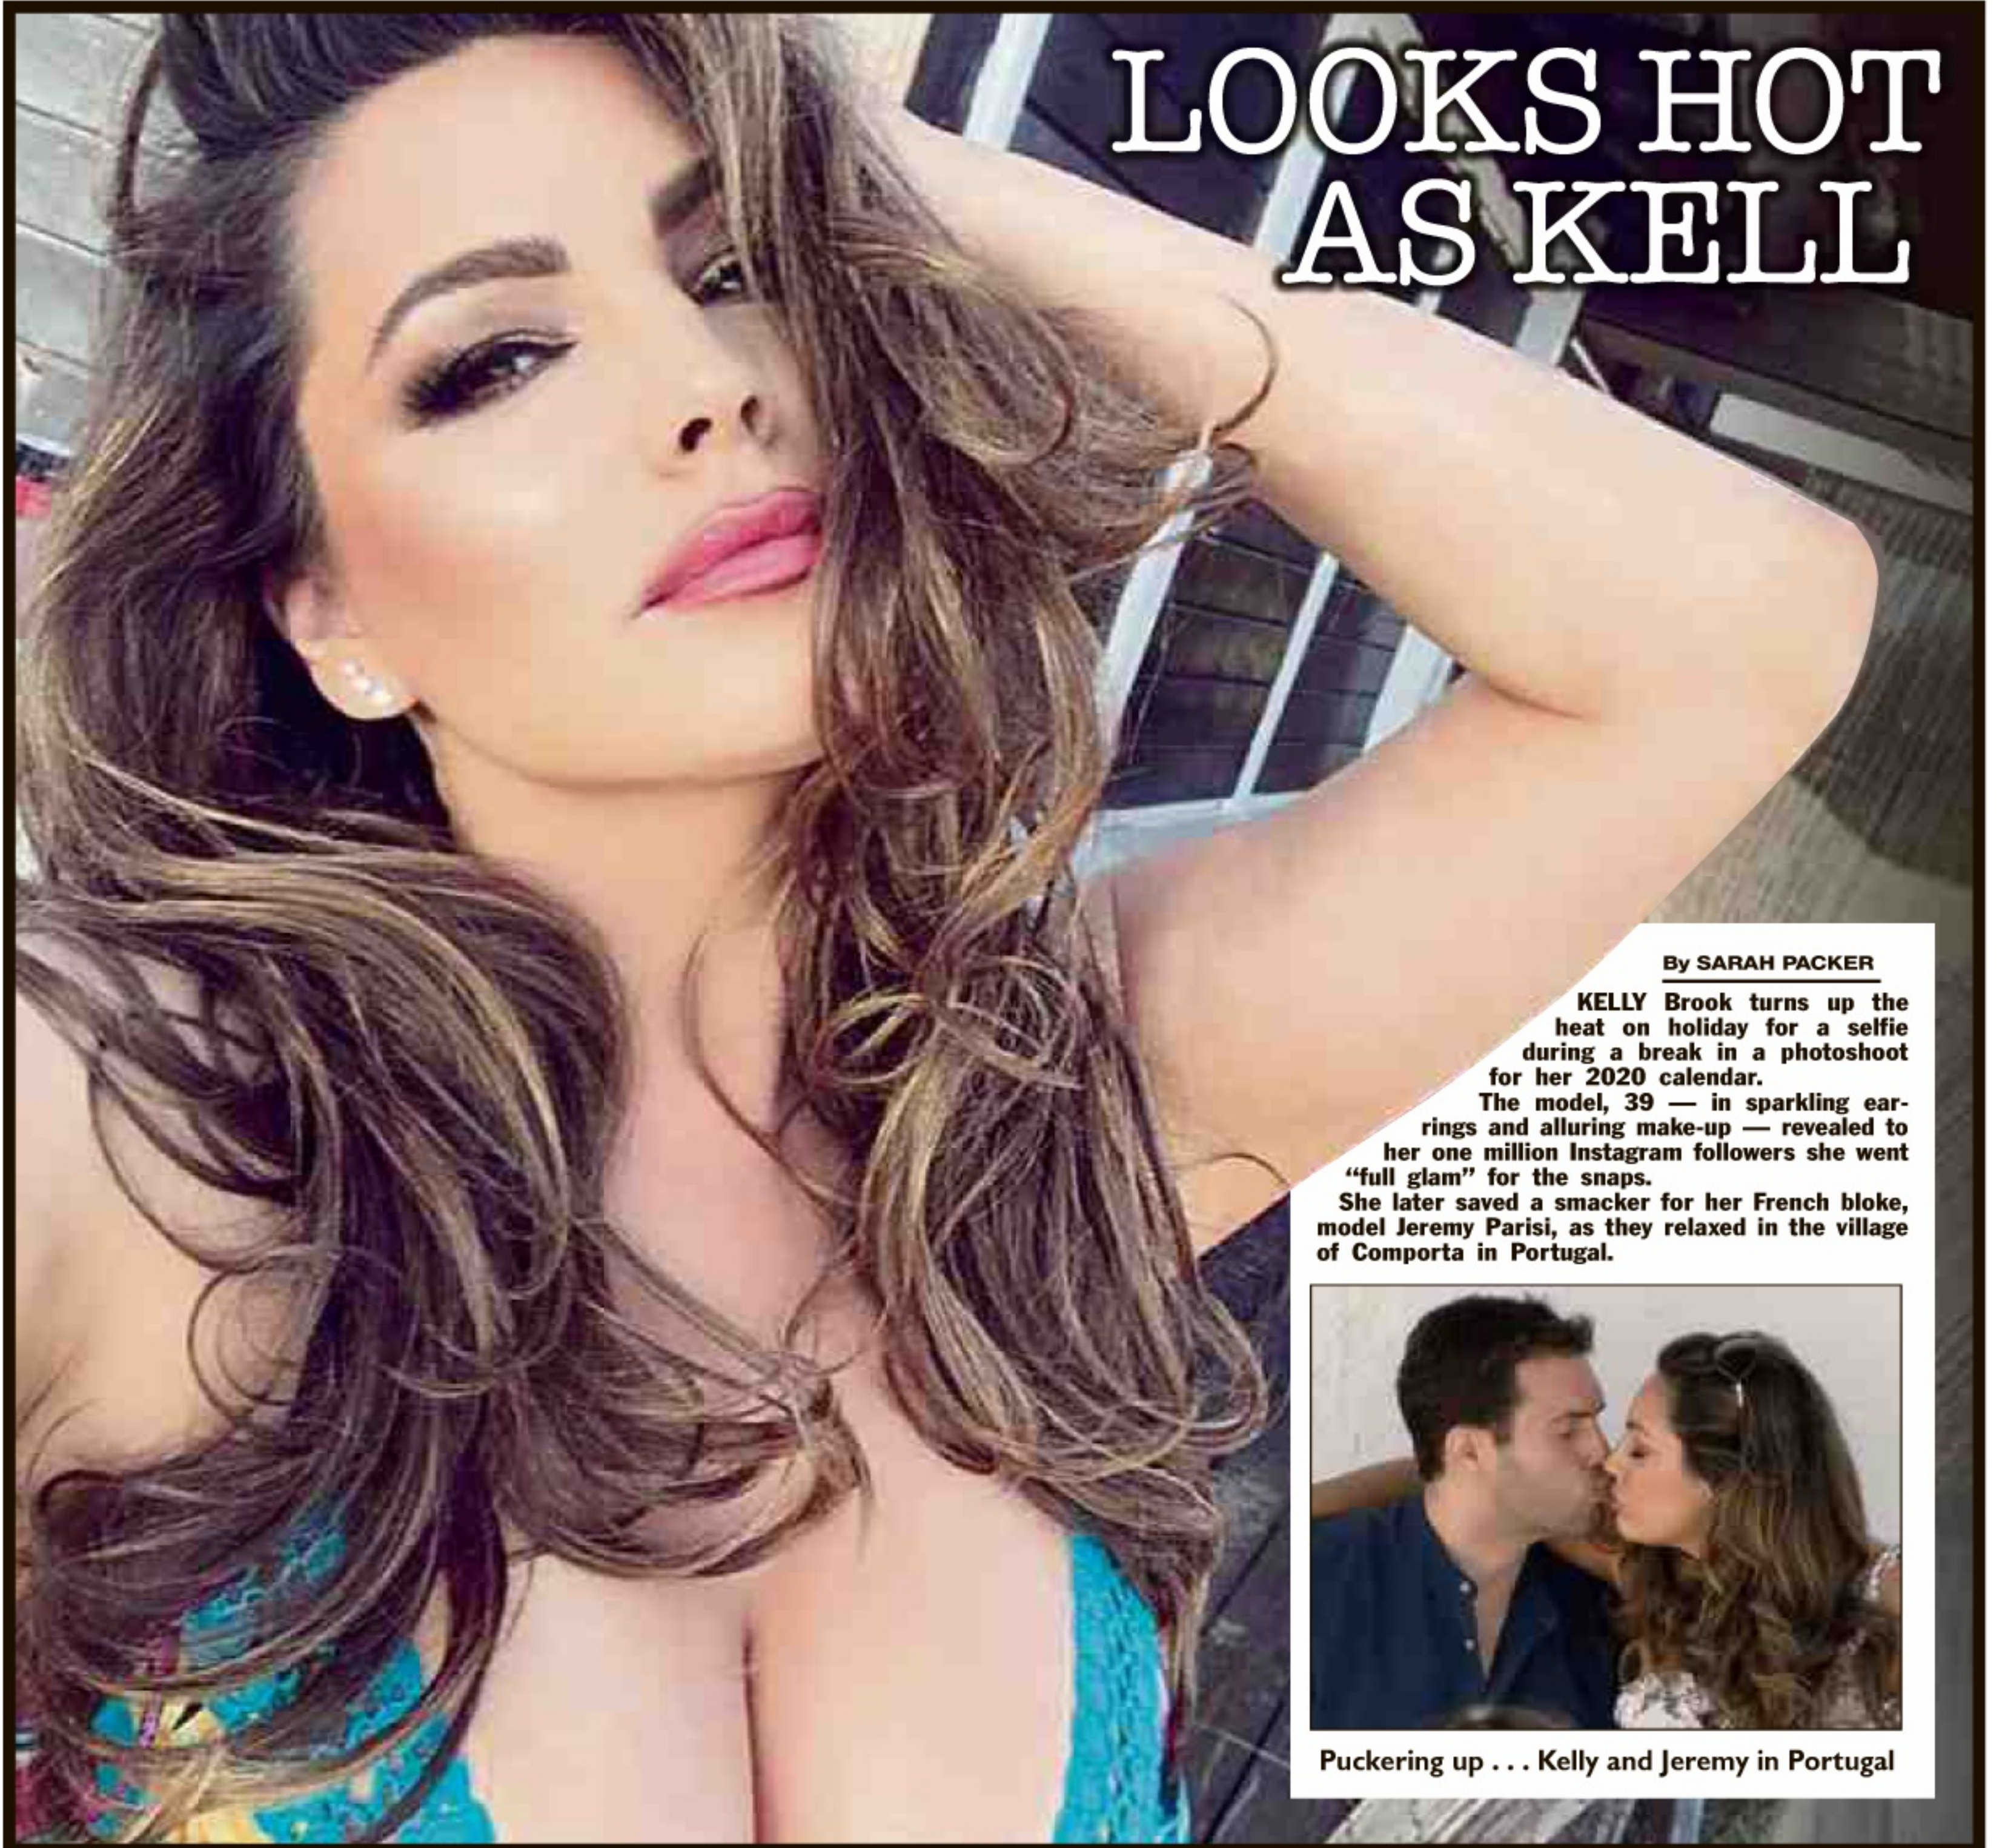

AN illegal rave by 1,000 partygoers on farmland sparked 100 complaints.

Residents said they were kept up all night by the event, which started early on Easter Sunday.

Police said there had been criminal damage to property. Officers later seized sound equipment.

Stragglers quit the farm at Wytch, near Corfe Castle, Dorset, yesterday.

They left as a 21-year-old woman was quizzed on suspicion of GBH after claims a woman in her 20s was hit with a bottle.

BLACK MARKET VIAGRA PERIL

Web buy left me ill

CHEF John Browne told The Sun that buying Viagra online left him feeling so ill he had to take time off work.

The 39-year-old, of Ross-on-Wye, Herefordshire, said: “I paid £25 for ten pills.

I had a date and thought I'd take a pill in case it went well.

“I started feeling hot, light-headed and dehydrated. I got home about 11.30pm feeling awful.

“My heart was pounding, the headache was the worst I've ever had.

“I ended up taking three days off work. I binned the rest of the pills.”

total of 4.3million tablets. Health Minister Nicola Blackwood said: “It is extremely dangerous buying illicit medicines online for erectile dysfunction.

“Men have no idea what the ingredients are and the side effects are unknown. Erectile dysfunction should not be ignored — it is often caused by underlying health conditions that should be checked out.

“Viagra can now be bought in a pharmacy, where you can speak to the pharmacist about your needs and access medicines safely.”

Officials at the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency seized more than £13million worth of dodgy impotence drugs in the past 12 months.

It is eight times the value confiscated four years earlier, when they impounded £1.6million of pills.

Viagra is now available from a chemist or registered online pharmacy without prescription for around £4 a pill. But fakes can be bought online for as little as 50p.

Expert Dr Geoff Hackett said men had died taking online pills containing diabetes medication. Erectile dysfunction affects five million Brits.

MOTIONS... Kate

WIDOW IS KATE'S FUNERAL

THERE are several very good television actors who are currently having the worst eight hours of their career, every Monday night, on ITV.

And there's also Kate Beckinsale, who's going through the motions like Gillian McKeith on a dysentery ward.

She's The Widow, Georgia Wells. Except she's not, as her Australian husband, Matt Le Nevez, is actually alive, locked inside a box, in the African jungle, where he's probably wondering why Kate was fully clothed for all their bedroom scenes and praying his agent gets an early call from the Home And Away office.

Neither of them should expect any help from the writers, though. The Widow is set somewhere between the present day, three years ago, seven years ago and probably a week last Friday.

At various points in between, she meets Charles Dance, Alex

● EASTENDERS, Melanie Owen: "It's never over is it, this thing? It's never going to end, is it?"
No. It's not.

Kingston off Soldier Soldier, all sorts of stropky ar*eholes with AK47s and a fat, blind Icelandic bloke who miraculously survived her husband's jungle air-crash, along with just about everyone else on board, including the woman who blew the damn thing up.

A rollercoaster ride The Widow has been for viewers as well, having gone from "entertaining" to "entertainingly bad", to just plain old bad, over the course of five baffling episodes.

From a purely professional point of view, however, it's been worth the five-hour sacrifice just to flag up the difference between a complicated drama that's worth the effort, like Line Of Duty, and a complicated drama where, for no good reason at all, Kate Beckinsale suddenly asks her husband: "What's this?" And he replies: "It's estate agents selling houses. I've no idea why I watch this s."
Me neither. Click.

No body hang-ups a hug won't fix on Love Handles Island

YOU may well have seen Camilla Thurlow leap backwards into a 60ft ravine on Sunday's SAS: Who Dares Wins episode.

Or witnessed Jack Fincham trying to launch his boxing career in the Good Morning Britain studio a few days earlier.

But you haven't really grasped the true hold Love Island has on British television until you've seen a naked "Zebra" woman twerking away her insecurities, not 20 minutes after Channel 4 News has finished dissecting the Mueller report.

One of many flabbergasting cameos offered up by Naked Beach, a made-for-Gogglebox series which owes such a debt of gratitude to the ITV2 show it should be called Love Handles Island.

It's never credited directly here but thanks to "media images", and blah-blah-blah Channel 4 narrator Tamzin Outhwaite assures us: "Britain is now in the grip of a body image crisis."

It's not, clearly, and, aside from one case of vitiligo, there's absolutely nothing wrong with the three Naked Beach guests a bit of exercise and a time machine wouldn't cure.

We live in the age of victimhood, though, so Channel 4's flown them out to the Greek Islands and aims to "transform the way they feel about their bodies", by flashing their ar*es on pre-watershed prime time.

Here there's a Love Island-style villa and eight naked "hosts", who are a little on the over-friendly side. A couple also have daft names (Jsky and Lala) and, just to heighten the cultist feel, they've all been body-painted to look like zebras, leopards, parrots and serpents, in a delightful splash of vegan vomit green.

Their job, it is, to nudge, coerce and generally hug the three guests out of their gear.

Naked Beach doesn't get seriously weird, however, until they introduce the "therapy", which has been devised by

THE BOTTOM LINE... Naked Villa sees hosts go starkers

Natasha Devon "MBE" and psychologist Dr Keon West who, academic livewire that he is, has noticed all sorts of things start looking more likely when you're in a luxury villa surrounded by reasonably attractive naked people.

A group hug or four

It starts with "mirror exposure therapy" (gawping at your genitals for 20 minutes). Then they have to watch the hosts twerk, stretch and play tennis, before progressing to the "five-minute flash" stage, which really has to be seen to be believed and involves two naked people surrounding themselves with towels saying the first dumb thing that comes into their heads, like: "Where's my vagina?"

I dunno, wherever you left it, probably. After that humiliation, the big reveal down at Naked Beach is probably a breeze and it's no surprise at all to see everyone comply.

As regular Channel 4 viewers, and anyone who saw Mums Make Porn know, the sly sods have realised there's nothing punters won't go along with as long as you keep telling them it's all about "positivity" and punctuate everything with a group hug or four.

You may disagree, of course, and think the network is trying to solve a very real problem rather than just its own 8pm to 9pm scheduling headache, but there are two very good reasons I don't begin to think this show is sincere.

Firstly, spout all the inclusive, right-on we're-all-the-same-underneath platitudes you like, there is no one even nudging 50 here, because, let's face it, old people aren't going to attract the sort of target audience who are currently getting their

Thursday evening jollies from the Naked Beach gang.

And secondly, it's just bloody not, is it. All agreed? Good. Let's have a group hug then.

MAMMA MIA! HE'S A WUSS

EVEN allowing for preview tapes, it takes a lot to stop me watching Line Of Duty for a second and often third time on a Sunday night.

But Channel 4's Celebrity SAS: Who Dares Wins has achieved the near impossible.

To some degree, that's down to the refusal of Made In Chelsea's Sam Thompson to grow the hell up and all the thoroughly deserved bollockings he receives as a result from Ant Middleton and the other three staff.

There's also the damning contrast between the lives of the show's four Special Forces veterans and the celebrities.

So one minute you have war hero Jason "Foxy" Fox stoically recalling the experience of hauling dead comrades from the battlefield, the next actor Jeremy Irvine is complaining about the nightmare of having to get in shape for Mamma Mia! Here We Go Again: "Because you have to have a six pack for that... and that's really tough."

Yeah, it must be a living hell, Jeremy.

Then, in the middle of these two colliding worlds, 3,000 metres above sea level, in the Chilean Andes, cyclist Victoria Pendleton suddenly pipes up: "Imagine if we saw a polar bear!"

Yeah, well I'd imagine you might, if the truck drops you off at Santiago Zoo, but I suspect life is about to become hideously uncomfortable for you, Jeremy and Sam, which is why I'm totally hooked (Channel 4, Sunday, 9pm).

ON the final, very moving and historic episode of BBC2's Pilgrimage: The Road to Rome, gay comedian Stephen K Amos came seeking acceptance when he was granted a very special audience with Pope Francis I, who told him: "We are all human beings. Brexiteers' plan for Irish border gets a boost renewed pressure to call time on stalled talks with Labour for a cross-party exit deal.

But replacing the backstop to keep the border open with the "Malthouse Compromise" of stand-off customs declarations and checks is the only way she can win a Commons majority, the group insist. They're led by Iain Duncan Smith, who held talks ten days ago on the plan with EU chief negotiator Michel Barnier and DUP leader Arlene Foster. It would mean reopening the Withdrawal Agreement with the EU, a major stumbling block. The Sun has been told the PM "reluctantly" agreed to ask aides to dust down the Malthouse Compromise last week, under heavy pressure.

Mr Duncan Smith said: "Alternative arrangements are the only arrangements that will ever work on the Irish border.

"It's the right thing for the PM to aim to resolve this before the Withdrawal Agreement is brought back to Parliament."

IDS's group still believe Mrs May can carry out a rapid new negotiation with the EU over the next four weeks in time to avoid having to hold euro elections on May 23.

Labour MP gaffe on 'Israel brutality'

By STEVE HAWKES

LABOUR faced a fresh anti-Semitism crisis last night after an MP wrongly claimed a video showed Israeli soldiers attacking two kids.

Grahame Morris retweeted the video, saying it showed Israeli troops "beating up Palestinian children for the fun of it".

But campaign group Labour Against Anti-Semitism immediately pointed out it was actually footage from 2015 of Guatemalan troops, branding Mr Morris "disgusting".

Mr Morris - the chairman of Unite-backed Labour MPs - was forced to apologise three years ago for a "poorly worded" tweet after he appeared to compare Israel to the Nazis.

The MP for Easington posted a comment to a picture of Israeli flags and said: "Nazis in my village, do you see the flag they fly."

Lark our top tune

THE Lark Ascending by Ralph Vaughan Williams has reclaimed top spot in a poll to find Britain's favourite classical music.

The English composer's 15-minute work came third last year in Classic FM's Hall of Fame - beaten to No1 by Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture.

The Lark Ascending was first in 2017 and has now come top nine times.

More than 110,000 votes were cast in the 24th edition of the annual poll.

The survey also indicates a surge in popularity for British composers, with Edward Elgar's Enigma Variations reaching a record high of third place.

Egghead CJ: Aids is killing me

By PATRICK GYSIN

FORMER Eggheads star CJ de Mooi has said he is dying of Aids and is desperate to avoid being made homeless.

The 49-year-old claimed he was axed from the BBC Two quiz in 2016 as he fought false allegations he had sexually assaulted a man on a night out.

CJ said he faced huge legal bills battling extradition to the Netherlands over accusations he murdered a homeless man in Amsterdam in 1988.

While the investigation was dropped, his legal fight affected his health as well as his finances, having been declared bankrupt last September.

CJ tweeted: "I've been living with Aids for 30 years but the agony of the last three years means I may not have many left."

"I'm outwardly healthy, still running and am staying positive I can get better."

The ex-quiz star said he runs the risk of losing his home in Monmouthshire, Wales, because of money woes.

A crowdfunding campaign has been set up to help him. His friend Joe wrote: "CJ's life is ruined, he is dying and about to lose his home."

by MATT WILKINSON

A CAR owner who rowed with a garage about repairs on his £110,000 Audi found graffiti mocking his willy size hidden inside a bumper.

Dan Bartlett, 42, returned his R8 three times to the Audi dealer claiming they damaged a bumper and a dashboard.

When he removed the bumper 18 months later to do some repairs himself he found the hidden rude messages. One read: "If only my penis was as penis shaped as my car."

A second said: "I love c and my one is tiny I drive R8" Two others said "I am a dick" and "I have a tiny dick that is why I drive fast."

criminal damage. Dan said: "At first I laughed because it is quite funny."

"But that soon turned to anger that they could do this. This isn't a cheap runaround. They damaged the car and thought they'd get away with it."

The married dad of six splashed out on the second-hand 205mph sports car after a test-drive.

But when he went to pick it up weeks later he found paintwork on the rear bumper damaged and the dashboard and an alloy wheel scratched.

Dan returned the car three times before the bumper was finally sprayed to his satisfaction. He said finding the secret messages was the final straw.

He added: "I can't believe this is how they treat customers."

Audi said: "We apologise for any upset. An investigation is ongoing."

The retail sector is under growing pressure from rises in business rates and wages. Shoppers also fell by 2.1 per cent last year as they buy more online.

As the crisis deepens, big retailers are using a controversial insolvency procedure to cut costs. Debenhams, Topshop owner Arcadia Group, Paperchase and Monsoon are among those using or expected to use company voluntary arrangements.

BOY BAND FEEL THEIR

EXCLUSIVE by

LUCY JONES

Backstage at Sheffield Arena

THEY are one of the most famous boybands in the world – but after 30 years in showbiz, Take That are feeling their age.

Over the next three months they will belt out anthems such as Never Forget and Relight My Fire in a hugely anticipated Greatest Hits Live tour across the UK and Europe to nearly a million fans.

And in the midst of the gruelling schedule, it's hardly surprising that Gary Barlow, 48, Mark Owen, 47, and Howard Donald, who turns 51 on Sunday, are thinking about their advancing years.

I meet them backstage on the first night of their tour, in Sheffield, and Howard explained: "This is a physical tour, especially the first 40 minutes of it. We're all very fit but I think it's one of those, as you get older you always tend to claim that this is probably going to be the most energetic show, but I think that's because we're getting older that it becomes harder."

Being able to do the lively routines Take That are known for weighed on Mark's mind. He said: "We wanted to do a special show. We wanted to feel at our best to get up there and be able to give our best, so we've been looking after ourselves and I think we're at one of our fittest. Everybody's focused for this tour."

Huge fridges packed with rosemary water

Backstage is a sedate affair these days compared to when they formed as a five-piece with Robbie Williams and Jason Orange in 1989. Back then, thoughts were about screaming groupies and lycra outfits – now it's wrinkles and tea.

Howard says he's "relieved" he's managed to keep a full head of hair, as he may have been ditched from the band if he'd lost it. He adds: "I've been fearing going bald since I was 18, seriously, I have. We would have had a new member if I'd have got a bald patch."

A hair transplant isn't something Mark needs to worry about. He's still sporting his long, straggly barnet that he told The Sun last year was an attempt to get a cameo role in Game Of Thrones.

When I ask the three whether they might consider plastic surgery, Mark says he wouldn't rule it out.

He quips: "See us in five years. Watch this space."

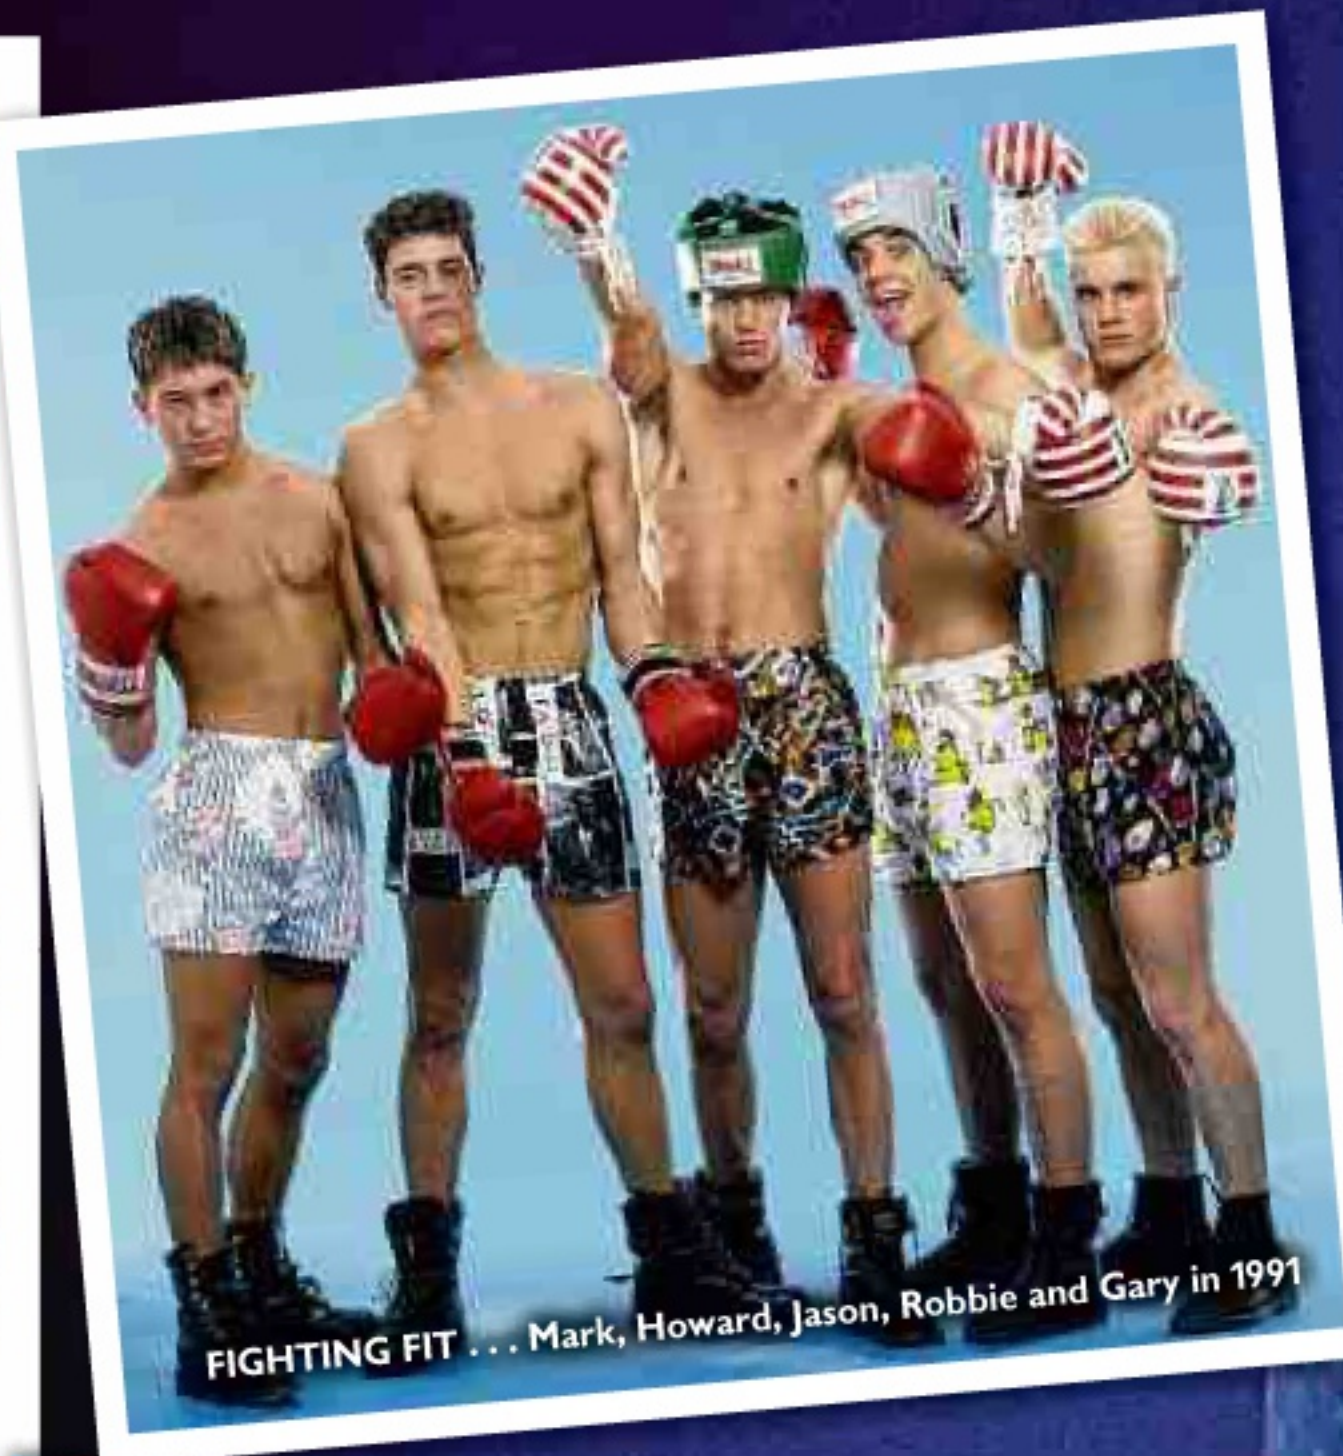

But squeamish Gary says: "It's not for me. I don't like going anywhere near a syringe."

"That's what puts me off. It's not the way I look, I'm not that bothered about looks, it's the procedure."

AGE BUT STILL ON TOP AFTER 30 YEARS

‘This is a very physical tour...we’re getting older so it becomes harder’

- HOWARD, ALMOST 51

This could be greatest day of our midlife

Say TAKE THAT

EVERYTHING CHANGES... band kick off latest tour in Sheffield singer Pink was awarded it this year.

Howard blasts: “We’re not going to get anything from the Brits. We’re not bloody Americans, we’re Brits. It doesn’t make sense to me. “There should have been some recognition for the 30 years, 100 per cent. You need to tell them.”

Gary also grumbles at the situation urging me to “tell them”, with Mark quickly adding: “I mean, they gave it to Rob one year so maybe they think they can’t give it to Take That again.”

And while they’re in a reflective mood, there’s something they would change if they did it all again – their name.

Mark says: “There have been times when we’ve been a bit embarrassed about our name. We used to apologise when we introduced ourselves saying ‘We’re Take

That’ and thought we should be called something different.” Gary adds: “It’s a little bit like The Pet Shop Boys – as a name you think it’s stupid.

“When you say the name Take That you do tend to think of us in a stadium or something, but it is a crap name.”

‘We’re going to rest for a bit afterwards’

But they had a lucky escape – the other suggestions were the even more cringeworthy The Cutest Rush and Kick It.

Speculation was rife that the Greatest Hits Live tour, which kicked off just over a week ago, would mark the end of the group. But they insist they will be back for “chapter three”. This time around though, Gary and Mark, who each have three kids, and dad-of-four Howard have prioritised a much-needed break with family after the tour.

Howard says: “We’re going to rest for a bit and not even think about any other tours or albums.

“This is the end of Part Two and when we feel like it, we can come back and start talking again about where we want to go next, rather than having the pressure of coming straight out of a tour and thinking, ‘Right, come the middle of the year we’ve got to start writing another album and go over to LA and do this and do that’.

“It’s actually really nice, because we’ve all got big families and we want to spend time with them rather than saying ‘We’re only going to stay with them ‘til August and then we’ve got to go over to LA and do another album’.

Mark adds: “This tour is a way for us to show our gratitude and we wanted to go out with something really special.

“And I think we might have made something special.”

Gary says: “I don’t think we could even begin to imagine doing an anniversary tour remembering where we started.

“It really means a lot to us this – little did we know in 1989, when we were all stood looking at each other, that here we would be celebrating 30 years and on one of the biggest tours we’ve played as well.

“It just doesn’t make sense. You’re meant to lose popularity the longer you’re around but I don’t know, we keep coming back.” Howard adds: “Everyone loves a trier”.

The tour features regular references to and footage of their former members Jason, 48, and Robbie, 45, who has been busy with a residency in Las Vegas.

And even though they haven’t performed as a five-piece since 2014, it seems there’s still hope for a reunion in the future.

Howard says: “Jason’s been off the radar in the past but he’s back online and emailed us before the tour to say good luck.”

Robbie also recorded new footage of himself singing some of the band’s tracks to feature on the tour.

At the rate they are going with their never-ending success, a full reunion will be on the cards for their 50th anniversary.

Fury over instructor 'rape' jibe

By STEPHEN MOYES

UNI bosses are accused of ignoring complaints after a gym instructor allegedly said a woman should be raped for not turning up to a class.

Ross Brain is accused of sending the offensive message to other staff using WhatsApp.

It is claimed his message, part of a discussion about what action to take against the women, said: "Let's rape her. Or give her the choice of 600 burpees or rape."

Colleagues complained to Edinburgh University's HR department but say they have heard nothing - three months on.

A source said: "It's like they're trying to brush it under the rug. People want action."

The university said a disciplinary procedure had taken place.

When they did find him, the Latvian confessed he had made it all up. A source said: "His workmates feared the worst when he said he'd been kidnapped. It was like something

Arrests as mum killed in hit-&-run

By RICHARD MORIARTY

A MUM of five was killed in a three-vehicle hit-and-run.

Joanne Bailey-Collinge, 34, suffered fatal injuries at the wheel of a VW Polo on Easter Saturday.

Her passengers – two girls aged four and 13, and a 29 year-old man – were also hurt, in Wigan.

Cops later arrested the 26-year-old male driver of a Volkswagen Amarok on suspicion of murder after the truck was found abandoned nearby.

A 42-year-old man was arrested on suspicion of conspiracy to pervert the course of justice.

Three men in a Merc, two aged 20 and one of 21, suffered minor injuries. One was arrested on suspicion of causing death by dangerous driving.

The other two were arrested on suspicion of causing criminal damage.

Channel 36 saved

A TOTAL of 36 migrants in three small boats were rescued from the English Channel yesterday.

Eleven men, said to be Iranian and Iraqi, were brought to Dover, Kent, by Border Force officials in the early hours.

Hours later, 15 people including three children were found on a dingy.

Some were unconscious but were treated after being brought ashore at Dungeness, Kent, and found to be fit and well.

Later, nine Iranian men and one woman were brought ashore at Dover.

The Home Office said they had "taken a huge risk with their life".

A TOP plant expert has blasted BBC gardening shows for failing to highlight the dangers of bringing specimens back from holidays abroad.

Defra's chief plant health officer Prof Nicola Spence said hosts such as Monty Don should not encourage people to plant them in their gardens.

She said they are a high risk for importing pests and disease.

Prof Spence said: "It's about knowledge so everybody knows it's not good to bring plants back from your holidays."

"And just because it's on Amazon doesn't necessarily mean it's legal."

RECORD BAKER!

Hottest Easter Monday

By ROBIN PERRIE

BRITS basked in record heat again yesterday as the sun-drenched holiday weekend ended.

The previous Easter Monday best of 75.2F (24C) set in 2011 was smashed by a peak of 77F (25C) in Northolt in North West London.

It capped off a glorious four days, which saw temperature records broken on three of them.

And the Met Office said all four UK countries had their warmest Easter Monday on record.

Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland reached 74.5F (23.6C), 74.3F (23.5C) and 70.5F (21.4C) respectively.

The UK has been hotter than Spain, Turkey and even parts of North Africa.

Met forecaster Helen Roberts said yesterday: "We have just beaten the Easter Monday record. It is almost wall-to-wall sunshine."

The weather brought a tourism bonanza. VisitEngland estimated 7.4million Brits had a staycation this Easter weekend, giving the economy a £1.8billion boost.

Brighton beach was packed – in stark contrast to last Easter when a lone couple huddled together to keep warm in the rain.

But the scorcher also saw tempers fray, while moorland was set ablaze.

In the city of Durham, one reveller cooled off by stripping to his shorts and jumping in to the River Wear next to a packed pub.

Drinkers cheered but, as bouncers tried to shepherd him away after, it turned into a punch-up, filmed by shocked witnesses.

A daytrippers' barbecue was said to have started a fire that destroyed wildlife habitats as it engulfed 300 hectares of Marsden Moor, near Huddersfield.

It had cost the National Trust £200,000 to establish the nature area.

Meanwhile, police said one of three men arrested after Saturday's fire on Yorkshire's Ilkley Moor has been charged with arson.

But thunderstorms are on their way and temperatures will fall from tomorrow.

leader Gerard Batten and Tommy Robinson were using it to further their aims.

He claimed that the fight to convince Theresa May to save veterans from being dragged through the courts could be lost if the campaign was stolen or diluted for "political gain".

He also accused the PM of a "conscious decision" not to help soldiers who served in Northern Ireland. He said: "She has bottled it, and it breaks my heart."

The blast follows a Good Friday Veterans March in London. Mr Batten was seen leading thousands protesting over the prosecution of "Soldier F" for murder over the Bloody Sunday shootings in 1972.

Mr Mercer said he did not attend because of his concerns about Ukip's involvement. He said: "I cannot share platforms with those who promote far right rhetoric dressed up as patriotism."

CABBIE'S favourite the Toyota Prius has been voted Britain's best car.

The world's best-selling hybrid, instantly recognisable to anyone who takes an Uber, landed the accolade after a survey of nearly 30,000 drivers. The Mark 4 Prius scored 93.22 out of 100 to land the Driver Power award from Auto Express.

It beat the Lexus IS, one of three models from Japanese company Toyota's luxury brand in the top ten. It also eclipsed last year's winner, the Peugeot 3008, which was seventh. Auto Express described the Prius as efficient and safe, adding: "Owners tell us the car offers savings, such as on insurance, and heap praise on the servicing costs.

"It also gains high marks for three elements that make up our engine and gearbox category, suggesting it is as smooth as it is fast and quiet."

The winner was chosen from the 100 best-selling new cars over the past two years. They were rated by drivers for a range of features, from comfort to reliability, ease of driving and cost and frequency of repairs.

Hybrid and electric cars were once considered to be expensive and trendy. But now they are bought for their reliability, cheap tax and remarkable fuel consumption.

Six of the top ten in the annual Driver Power survey are available in either electric or hybrid versions.

The Prius, which averages 52 miles a gallon, is a favourite with cabbies for being cheap to run yet roomy.

Toyota's Paul Van der Burgh said: "It's wonderful that, more than 20 years after Prius kick-started the electrification revolution, this hybrid is Driver Power's new car in 2019."

"It's a testament to Toyota's constant innovation combined with a relentless focus on quality."

SHE has only just finished the final leg of her epic world tour, yet KYLIE MINOGUE is already working on new music. The Aussie pop princess released her previous album, Golden, in April, 2018, before embarking on her seven-month tour of the same name in September. But rather than taking a well-earned break, Kylie wants her next release to be ready by the summer.

A source said:

"Kylie's been writing and recording new music for a while and its likely fans will hear some of the material when she plays Glastonbury in June."

"She's just registered a song called A Rose Is A Rose, which she wrote with producer EG White. "He worked with Kylie on her most recent album and has written songs for big-name artists including ADELE and CELINE DION."

Kylie's last album went straight to the No1 spot and there is no doubt her next offering will do the same.

Mel bid for Lass Vegas

SIN CITY 2

BRITNEY SPEARS was forced to cancel her Las Vegas residency as she was "mentally incapable" of performing, US reports have claimed. She binned the six-months of shows in January, saying she had to care for her sick dad. But insiders last night called the excuse "complete nonsense" used for "damage control." Sources say her state of mind had worsened to the point she was not able to care for herself – let alone her dad. Britney, who was seen for the first time yesterday since checking into a mental health clinic at the end of last month "was in no condition mentally to take on a rigorous schedule of rehearsals and performances", it was claimed. In January Britney wrote: "I will not be performing my new show Domination. I had to make the difficult decision to put my full focus and energy on my family at this time." Let's hope she's finally receiving the help she needs.

PUSHES FOR SPICE RESIDENCY

SIN City has tempted big Brit names, with ELTON JOHN, ROBBIE WILLIAMS and TOM JONES all landing Las Vegas residencies. But the next big thing to park up on the strip could be the SPICE GIRLS. They have been offered a big-money deal at The Colosseum in Caesars Palace. And I'm told MEL B is pushing her bandmates to get on board. "GERI HORNER, MEL B, MEL C and EMMA BUNTON all have commitments but a residency means they could dip in and out when it suits them, rather than having to put everything on hold for a tour of the US. "Mel B is keen to make it happen as she has a history with Caesars after her burlesque production, Peepshow, was based there in 2009, so she's totally behind the idea. And her main base is Los Angeles so it would be a perfect fit for her. "If the UK tour is as successful as everyone thinks it will be, this could be a very lucrative deal for them." The band's first date is at Dublin's Croke Park on May 24 – but Mel B was unable to join the girls' London rehearsals last week and stayed in LA. But over the weekend she tried to stop fans worrying – sharing a video of herself practising the choreography with her youngest daughter Madison. I get the sentiment, but Mel needs to hurry up and get to London. At this rate, it won't just be stayaway VICTORIA BECKHAM who's out of step...

OVERSPENT ON THE EASTER WEEKEND?

PENNY WISE... tips to tighten family finances

Get back on track after hol blowout

ALREADY praying for payday thanks to the Easter bank holiday weekend?

If so, you are not alone. Households spend an average of £410 each over the weekend, according to The Centre for Economics & Business Research.

Start with these tips to get back on track following the spending hangover.

HEADING OUT: Get organised – write a shopping list and stick to it.

Planning family meals for the week means you are less likely to be swayed by impulse buys. Then set a budget and do not go over.

Supermarkets list special offers on their homepages, or you can check facebook.com/thesunsavers where I mention lots of the best daily deals for everything from food to homeware.

SUPERMARKET RUN: Have a bite before hitting the shops. In a study, people who went food shopping while hungry not only chose foods higher in calories, they also spent 64 per cent more cash. As the average UK family spends £91 a week on food, any extra on top certainly stacks up.

CLOTHES SHOPPING: Many high street stores expect customers to ask for a discount. If you don't ask, you won't get. When you are ready to give haggling a go, look out for discounted items as there is often flexibility to reduce the price even more.

Towards the end of a sale is the golden time to barter, as shops want to clear out old stock to make way for new items. If you are feeling shy, try haggling online via live help chats.

AT HOME: Waste not, want not. We throw away 15million tonnes of edible food every year.

That is a lot of wasted food, and funds.

The average household can save up to £400 a year if they eat everything they buy – so try to stick to buying only what you need.

If you do have extra food that needs to be used, try cooking big meals and freezing what you do not eat to get more for your money.

Badly hurt... Qasim

Quad KO horror of soap star

By RICHARD MORIARTY

A SOAP star has urged people to wear helmets after dodging death in a quad biking accident.

Former Coronation Street actor Qasim Akhtar, who played Zeedan Nazir until last year, was left with a fractured arm and a bruised lung.

Posting a pic of himself in hospital on Instagram, the 27-year-old told fans it was a "huge Qasim hospital wake-up call".

He added: "Took a major L (Lesson) yesterday. Had an accident on the quad bike. Split my lower abdominal, bruised lung, fractured arm and a couple deep wounds.

"Bad as they sound and as much pain as I'm in right now I'm counting my blessings to have only picked up these injuries and not some life-threatening ones."

Qasim, of Manchester, added: "I urge people riding quads to wear helmets cos even though legally you don't need to, that saved me..."

False IVF hope rap

IVF clinics exploit older women by "trading on hope", a watchdog claims.

Many use selective data to disguise how success rates drop rapidly with age – just one per cent of over-44s using their own eggs has a baby.

Yet more than 10,000 over-40s attempted IVF in 2017 – twice as many as in 2004, says a report.

Sally Cheshire, of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority, said: "They use very selective success rates. They are catering to vulnerable women. They should not be trading on that hope."

'Creepy guy'... Kruchinkin

EXCLUSIVE by NICK
PARKER and RACHEL DALE

A LAWYER terrified a woman he met online with death threats when she jilted him after they had sex, a court has heard.

Former boarding school pupil Victor Kruchinkin, 32, told Christiana Amao she was lucky to be alive after she ended their fling.

The solicitor's abusive Facebook messages also branded her a "gobby ethnic" and called her fat with "saggy ts".

Kruchinkin lost his job after his arrest at his desk at Adams & Remers Solicitors in London's Pall Mall. He still faces a disciplinary tribunal.

He and business analyst Christiana hooked up on the Bumble dating app but she finished with him after they had sex on their second date.

She has since left London for a work placement in New York and a pal last night said: "She was upset after what that creepy, creepy guy did."

Prosecutor Gregor McKinley told Southwark crown court: "He said, 'You invited a psycho into your bed. You're lucky to be alive right now. You're lucky I decided to leave my machete at the hotel!'"

Christiana told the court: "I was extremely worried he would try and take my life."

Tahir Ali, defending, said he had Asperger syndrome which affected his behaviour.

Kruchinkin, of Kilburn, North West London, admitted causing annoyance or anxiety online. But he won an appeal to have his six-week suspended prison term reduced to a 12-month community order with 100 hours' unpaid work.

GAME Of Thrones fans are fuelling a huge rise in abandoned "wolf-dogs".

Majestic and loyal bodyguards to the likes of Jon Snow, it's not surprising some GoT devotees seek out real life "direwolves".

But after getting their own Ghost, many fans realise they've taken on too much.

UK charity Dogs Trust has seen a whopping 420 per cent rise in the number of abandoned lookalike breeds such as Akitas, Alaskan Malamutes, Samoyeds and Siberian Huskies since the show started in 2011.

It is currently receiving two such dogs EVERY DAY.

As the final season airs, 29 "wolf-dogs" are being looked after across the charity's 21 UK rescue centres, including Evesham, Worcs, and Kenilworth, Warks.

Status symbol

Throne fans pay up to £1,000 to buy photogenic "wolf-pups" from breeders – but often fail to realise what these big, strong breeds will need on an ongoing daily basis as they grow.

Brit actor Jerome Flynn, who plays Ser Bronn in the show, this month urged fans to stop buying large-breed canines they could not cope with. He said: "While people may have good intentions, acquiring dogs on a whim has dire consequences."

"Animal shelters around the world are reporting a surge in the number of abandoned Huskies because the casual acquirer, drawn to the dog's appearance, failed to take into consideration the amount of time, patience, and money required to care for these animals properly."

I visited the Dogs Trust kennels in Kenilworth, where there were six "direwolf-dogs". The rescue centre's Kayla Maryon told me it is impossible not to link the influx of these large dogs – such as current resident Theo, five – with the show.

Having pet wolf-dog is not a Game

CUTE... fans first saw Ghost as a pup in the show

She said: "These are stunning, eye-catching dogs, and the show exposes them to millions. It's easy to see why people who watch it then want one of their own. But some see them as a kind of status symbol on a lead. Sadly, too many are not thinking beyond the boxset to the animal's future welfare and requirements."

Originally bred for jobs such as hunting and pulling sleds, without enough daily activity the pups can become bored and frustrated.

That leads to disruptive behaviour that ill-prepared owners weren't expecting. Kayla said: "Not all owners are ignorant, and the dogs come to us for a variety of reasons. But plenty who buy them as expensive puppies from breeders simply don't realise what a commitment it is, or quite how large, tough, strong and bouncy that pup will become."

Kayla is keen to stress that for owners who HAVE done their research into the breed and can provide the right home, wolf-dogs make wonderful pets.

She said: "It can be frustrating when these dogs end up with us simply because the owners who hand them in weren't educated about what to expect, but the positive is that we'll always try to find them the ideal home.

"We make sure those re-homing our dogs are assessed carefully so we can make a good match."

"It's fine by us if they are Game Of Thrones fans, as long as they can offer what the dog needs."

It is heartbreaking to see so many wolf-dogs in the centre but the charity hopes after the show finale it will see fewer Thrones rejects.

Kayla added: "If you love Game Of Thrones and want a wolf-dog, that's fantastic, as long as you've done your research and will be able to look after it properly."

"But please don't just get one because they look cool on telly, when another dog might be more suitable for you."

"A dog is for life, not just the duration of a TV series."

Colin said: "There was an almighty crashing and they were shouting."

He is taking West Mercia Police to the small claims court. The force said: "These officers acted to help someone they believed to be in crisis."

Sex best in 2 beds

SLEEPING in separate beds can boost couples' sex lives, a survey claims.

More than a third who kipped apart had more romps than when they shared a bed.

And 16 per cent said the shift spiced up their love lives as they now had sex in more rooms.

The study of 1,540 Brits found that two fifths of couples sometimes sleep apart – just over half due to one of them snoring.

The survey to mark this being National Stop Snoring Week found 45 per cent have been kept awake by their other half's noise.

Geordies so sweet

GEORDIES are the most sweet-toothed in the UK with some putting ten sugars in their tea.

A survey of 2,000 Brits found one per cent of people from Newcastle admitted going into double figures.

Another nine per cent of Geordies have three or more teaspoons of sugar in their cuppa.

But Londoners topped the three-plus table at 12 per cent, then Oxford folk on ten per cent, said the poll by sofa firm ScS.

The study found electricians had the most cuppas, downing 11 in a day, while architects were second with eight brews.

DNA EVIDENCE BLOW IN HUNT FOR MADDIE

DNA tests using an advanced wonder technique have failed to crack the disappearance of Madeleine McCann.

The DNA-17 technique has yet to produce a match despite hopes it would point to any alleged abductor.

It was used to check samples

By MIKE SULLIVAN and ANTONELLA LAZZERI

from the apartment from which three-year-old Madeleine vanished almost 12 years ago.

But a source told The Sun: "As you would expect, all efforts have been made to obtain forensic evidence in Madeleine's case."

"These efforts include DNA testing on forensic samples using updated techniques. So far nothing has materialised but work still continues."

Madeleine disappeared from a holiday apartment in Praia da Luz, Algarve, on May 3, 2007.

More than 100 forensic items were recovered but the quality of samples was too poor to give investigators a match.

However, Madeleine's parents, Kate and Gerry, were hopeful that DNA-17, hailed as the biggest scenes of crime breakthrough in 20 years, would finally provide an answer. Met Police officers asked for items to be retested in Portuguese labs but so far to no avail.

Former detective chief inspector Mick Neville insisted there was still hope. He said: "DNA technology advances every year and what is seemingly impossible now may be a simple procedure in the future."

Boys OK to game

VIDEO gaming does not harm social development in boys – but girls who play struggle to make friends, a study suggests.

However, all kids aged eight to ten who find it hard to make friends are more likely to game more than two years later.

The researchers from Norway said the reasons some kids spend a lot of time gaming may be more important than the impact of gaming itself.

Horror at football as horse is killed

By CHLOE MAYER

FOOTBALL fans watched in horror as a police horse was killed yesterday. It was speared in the stomach by a metal traffic control pole near Blackpool FC's Bloomfield Road stadium.

The horse, called Morecambe, had been ushering rival fans away from the ground after the hosts' win over neighbours Fleetwood.

It is claimed it may have been spooked by the actions of fans on Seaside Way, which runs alongside the ground.

Morecambe was given medical treatment for the stomach wound.

The female officer riding the horse was being treated in hospital for crush injuries.

Football fans in the resort took to social media to pay their respects. Lancashire Police, one of the few forces left with a mounted division, said it was devastated last night.

Cancer tests high

A RECORD 2.2million patients were checked for cancer last year as celebrities such as Stephen Fry raised awareness.

The NHS England figure was up from 1.9million in 2017.

A new high of 308,058 also started treatment.

The health service said the rise was due in part to new referrals guidance for GPs in 2015.

But they also put it down to celebs such as Fry, 61, and former BBC Breakfast presenter Bill Turnbull, 63, sharing their cancer experiences.

NHS England's Cally Palmer said: "Catching cancer early is crucial."

SMASH & CAB

THIS black cab ride was short and sweet — after it ploughed into a shop and totalled the chocolate aisle.

The taxi was on the garage forecourt when it suddenly shot through the plate glass window in Burnley, Lancs, missing customer Chloe Egan, 26, by "inches".

Cops say the driver, in his 60s, had a "medical episode" but was not hurt and won't face criminal charges.

DRUNKEN UBER TRIP COST £275

AN Easter reveller got landed with a £275 cab bill after forgetting to change the settings on her Uber app.

Helen Dryden, 25, had a boozy day with pals in London on Good Friday and booked a taxi to take her 30 miles home to Guildford, Surrey. But the tipsy chemical engineer had her Uber setting fixed to the address in Newcastle where she went to university. She fell asleep and woke up an hour later 60 miles north in Milton Keynes.

Helen got the cabbie to turn back and drive her 75 miles home, with the tab being £275. She said: "I couldn't believe it. The whole day ended up costing me about £400. I feel really stupid. I got too drunk."

LINE OF DUTY STAR LEADS

HEARTBREAK... Vicky with nan Iris at care home

SENSE OF HUMOUR... dementia victim Iris

By ROD MCPHEE
Senior Bizarre Reporter

IT should have been one of the happiest years of Vicky McClure's life after winning a Bafta and landing her role in Line Of Duty.

But 2011 was also when doctors confirmed her maternal grandmother, Iris, was terminally ill with dementia.

For the next four years, the actress watched as she slowly faded away.

Now Vicky, 35, best known as anti-corruption cop DI Kate Fleming in the BBC1 thriller, is using the memories of her nan as inspiration for new documentary Vicky McClure: Our Dementia Choir.

In the moving two-part show, which starts next week, she leads a group of 20 singers suffering from the brain condition as they join together in their love of music.

It also meant sharing the pain endured by families of sufferers, including her own.

In one scene, Vicky is moved to tears when she asks her mum Carol if she feared getting dementia – and admits she has asked the same question to herself.

Vicky said: "I've got to be open in this process. I can't not ask those awkward questions. It's an obvious question, seeing as it seems to run in the family now. It is what it is."

'Life is too short to sit there waiting'

"I don't know what I'm going to die of. It could be dementia. I've thought of it but what can you do about it? Of course there's going to be that fear it could be me."

"I did get asked in the documentary, we did discuss it. You can have a test that can potentially give you an idea whether or not you might hold the gene or have the possibility of getting dementia. I would not want to know."

"I'd rather just let life do what it's gonna do. I could get hit by a bus. Life is too short to sit there thinking, 'because I have had a test, this is going to happen'."

"You've just got to live your life and enjoy every day."

"I don't think there's any point in looking too far ahead."

Vicky, who won her Best Actress Bafta for This Is England, has been in Line Of Duty since the first series in 2012.

It has become one of Britain's biggest dramas. But just as the thriller grew in popularity, Iris gradually declined. She died of her dementia, aged 79, in 2015.

The gripping show, which is drawing more than seven million viewers on Sunday nights, has turned Vicky from acclaimed actress into a household name. It has also given her two new friends in the form of co-stars Martin Compston and Adrian Dunbar, who play AC-12's DS Steve Arnott and Superintendent Ted Hastings.

That is why she made sure they were among the first to see the documentary when they were filming Line Of Duty series five in Northern Ireland last year.

Both men were reduced to tears. Vicky said: "They found it emotional, like everyone has. They are just human beings. They are not their characters to me, they are my friends."

"Martin and Adi watched a very rough cut when we were in Belfast, filming. They are my mates and they are just very proud."

In Our Dementia Choir, Vicky returns to her home city of Nottingham to bring the singers together, and provide some inspiration for the 850,000 people in the UK who have dementia.

The idea partly stemmed from the fact Vicky saw how music helped Iris, who used to respond to family members singing and dancing even when her condition was at its worst.

In one heart-breaking part of the documentary, we see old footage of her in a confuse believing she is a 14-year-old again.

Vicky has also said her nan to scream endlessly, and at the end of her life she no longer who her granddaughter was.

The actress said: "My nan was very bold and bright."

"She had a cracking sense of humour and a very dirty sense of humour. The dementia stripped all that away and leaves the shell of you."

"It's one of the hardest things to watch a family member go through."

"I also saw how music was changing her mood, calming her down and for a while bringing back the old Nana."

"I want to prove that life can end with a diagnosis."

"There currently isn't a cure for dementia but music is one of the things that has been proven to help. Over the course of three

PARCHED CHILDREN FAT FEARS

CHILDREN who do not drink water consume nearly 100 extra calories a day, said researchers.

Experts warn it significantly raises the risk of youngsters being fat or obese.

US scientists analysed the consumption habits of 8,400 kids aged two to 19. They found one in five never drank water and were likely to swig sugary fizz – raising their average daily calories by 93. A third of British kids leave primary school too fat.

Dr Asher Rosinger of Penn State University said: "Kids should drink water every day. If not, probably they'll drink sugary beverages. An extra 3,500 calories leads to 11lb of

CHOIR TO HELP SUFFERERS ENJOY LIFE

PERSONAL JOURNEY...
Vicky with choir

...but music brought her back

VICKY McCLURE

...d state, the choir members were tested by scientists to see how much music improved their health. Leading researchers even carried out brain scans to see how sound stimulated their minds. They were also given singing lessons to help them achieve their ultimate goal of delivering a performance to more than 2,000 people at Nottingham's Royal Concert Hall.

'Loads more to be discovered'

That included Vicky, roped in to boost the numbers. The journey they go on is packed with as much laughter as it is tragedy. Vicky met 67-year-old retired woodwork teacher Chris Connell, who was a keen recruit to the choir. He was diagnosed three years ago with having a form of dementia that can make his behaviour erratic. Vicky found this out in one hilarious scene during the documentary when she met Chris in the garden of his home and he showed her a phallic-shaped frame for a hammock. Chris said: "We like a bit of action in the bedroom, Vicky, and we've seen various marital aids and things and my wife Jane particularly liked this design, so I made it." "It just won't fit in the bedroom, so we have to have it out here. But it's still good fun, even in the garden. I mean, it's quite secluded here." But she also met Dan Bradbury, a 32-year-old musician who was diagnosed with a rare form of inherited Alzheimer's a year ago — one which killed his father by the age of 36. Medics only expect someone with his condition to live for four years after diagnosis. It is a particularly cruel blow because Dan and his wife Jordan have two-year-old twins, Jasper and Lola. The family's plight is an urgent reminder of why developing new treatments for dementia is so important. Jordan said: "The likelihood of them inheriting this is 50/50 and there will come a time when our children will get tested. "We both want, in that time, for things to have moved so far that if they are diagnosed with having this gene, there is at least some sort of treatment that will give them a longer life." This is why Vicky is keen to maintain the profile of dementia sufferers, which the documentary will bring. The BBC is already in talks to create an entire series, which could also be fronted by Vicky. She insists there is so much more to explore on the subject. She said: "I want to keep going. I'm not going to make a one or two-part documentary and, there, I've done my bit for dementia. "I want to see what happens next because there's loads more to be discovered. We did a lot of filming and there's a lot of things we didn't manage to put into the edit. "I want to find new ways to help people to live well with dementia. Everybody's doing their bit for that, and I definitely want to be a part of that." ●Vicky McClure: Our Dementia Choir is on BBC1 on May 2 and May 9 at 8pm.

MINDS UNDER ATTACK

THE Sun's doctor, Carol Cooper, says:

Dementia covers more than 200 conditions that affect the brain.

While it always means damage to nerve cells and some loss of brain power, each person suffers very differently.

The most common forms of dementia are Alzheimer's, vascular, Lewy body, frontotemporal, and mixed dementia, where there is more than one type going on. It can strike at any age but is a lot more common in the over-65s. Early-onset, or young-onset dementia, is the term for someone who gets symptoms before 65.

Although the rates may be dropping, there will still be many people with it in future as lifespan is rising.

Dementia symptoms can include problems with concentration, trouble recalling recent events and recognising people and items. There might be confusion, speech problem and issues with getting around familiar places.

Also, personality and behaviour may change, and the person could lose their inhibitions. Some types cause trembling and other symptoms similar to Parkinson's disease.

To diagnose dementia, the doctor asks questions related to mental wellbeing and does blood tests to rule out other conditions.

It is usual to have X-rays and a brain scan and to be referred to a neurologist or memory clinic.

Some very rare types can run in the family — around ten per cent of people with young-onset dementia have a genetic form of the disease. But heredity does not come into most forms.

There is no way to prevent dementia, although healthy living including exercise and socialising seems to reduce the risk.

There is still no cure but drugs can sometimes reduce the symptoms temporarily. Support is vital for people with dementia and those caring for someone who has it.

JUDGE... Lorraine

LIFE'S A DRAG FOR LORRAINE

SHE has dealt with enough divas on her ITV show, so I think LORRAINE KELLY will have no qualms knocking a few drag queens into shape.

The Sun columnist has landed a plum job as a guest judge on the UK version of cult series RuPaul's Drag Race.

The Scottish presenter will sit on the panel alongside drag queen RUPAUL, MICHELLE VISAGE and another celeb on BBC3 later this year.

The Sun recently told how CHERYL TWEEDY had signed up to appear on the show, with GRAHAM NORTON and ALAN CARR also announced as guest stars.

Lorraine tried to get CHER to appear on the US version of the hit last year, saying: "You have to go on RuPaul's Drag Race, please. They would spontaneously combust if you were on that." If Lorraine can convince Cher to take part, they should make her a permanent judge.

Craig's Doolighted with Strictly lovers

PAY ROW... Darcey

CRAIG REVEL-HORWOOD sees STACEY DOOLEY and KEVIN CLIFTON's surprise liaison as a Strictly success story - despite Stacey's ex Sam Tucknott being heartbroken.

In a new interview, the catty Aussie-born judge said: "I hope they live happily ever after. It will be another Strictly success story. I never call it the Strictly curse, I call it the Strictly blessing. People need to fall in love."

Devastated Sam branded Kevin a "slimy snake" after finding a text from the Grimsby-born dancer telling

TV host Stacey: "I love you". Craig, who has just finished judging Dancing With The Stars in Australia, said he was shocked DARCEY BUSSELL had left Strictly - and tipped former X Factor judge NICOLE SCHERZINGER to replace her.

The Sun told last week how

BBC bosses were also keen to get Cuban ballet star CARLOS ACOSTA lined up for the job.

Darcey quit as Strictly judge recently over a pay row.

Craig added: "I love her and we've got on so well over the last seven years."

"But people like to move on and she wants to do other things. I encourage that, and change is good."

On Nicole, he said: "She'd be fabulous."

"And ANTON DU BEKE definitely wants to do it. I'd love to see Nicole, or Carlos Acosta."

"But nobody has actually expressed anything to me. And I'm generally the last to find out."

Whoever they choose, I'm sure Craig will put them through their paces.

HAYLEY'S EASTER PRESENT

BABY... happy Hayley

FORMER EMMERDALE actress HAYLEY TAMADDON thought the chances of her becoming a mum had gone at the age of 42 - but now she is delighted to confirm she is pregnant.

Hayley shared the happy news on Twitter yesterday with her 126,000 followers.

She posted a snap of herself in the sunshine while holding her bump.

She wrote: "EXCITING NEWS TWEET!! I'm so pleased to tell you all... I'm expecting my first child with my wonderful boyfriend Adrian."

"I've always wanted to be a mum and didn't think I could have children."

"And now, at the ripe old age of 42 - I'M PREGNANT! We couldn't be happier."

It's an Easter gift that's truly priceless.

She's pregnant but is it mine?

Dear Deidre

A GIRL I had sex with is now pregnant. But she is freaking out because she slept with the other man in her life the next day, so she's not sure who the dad is.

I have only known her for a short while. We met one night when we were out drinking with friends. She is 20. I am 21.

I thought from what she said that she was no longer with the previous boyfriend, but it seems I was wrong.

We get on famously. I didn't feel we rushed into sex too soon at the time. She was obviously keen and so was I. I thought, at last, I had found my perfect girlfriend.

Now I am totally stressed out and don't know what to do.

I am not ready to become a father and, in any case, don't even know if this is my child.

The last thing I want to do is bring up another man's kid.

She's had an ultrasound and the date they gave her for how far into her pregnancy she is does coincide with when she and I had sex two months ago – but she then had sex with this other bloke the next day.

When I questioned her further she said they had full unprotected sex, whereas I withdrew.

I had only just finished with my previous girlfriend when I met this new one. I admit I moved on rather fast but my ex had always been so careful about accidental pregnancy. She was on the Pill.

I rather assumed this new woman had got advice and taken precautions, too. I know I should have had the discussion about it with her but the passion of the moment overtook us and being safe was the last thing on my mind.

Now I feel trapped into something I never wanted. It is difficult to talk to her because she flies off the handle. I guess she's panicking.

■ DEIDRE SAYS: This woman sounds as panicked and unready to be a parent as you are. Is she sure she wants to go ahead with the birth? It must be her choice, so don't pressure her, but she does have a choice.

If she does decide to go ahead, you won't be able to know which of you two is the father until the baby is born and DNA tests can be done.

Whichever of you it is will be liable to pay maintenance for this child and hopefully will be an involved dad.

But the main responsibility will fall on her – having a baby is just about the most major life-changer there is.

Suggest she talks to a pregnancy counsellor right away. My e-leaflet Unplanned Pregnancy gives details of where to find help.

Meanwhile, be as supportive as you can. Resolve always to use reliable contraception in future. Withdrawal is not an effective method of contraception, let alone protection against sexual infection.

Dear Deidre

ALTHOUGH I have always enjoyed sex, my partner has never been interested in it. As far as I know, he does not masturbate.

I am 46 and have been with my partner, 54, for four years.

If I instigate sex, he makes excuses. Often he blames me, saying I have bad breath or that I have put on weight so he doesn't find me attractive.

Sometimes he just says he is too tired.

Our relationship is good otherwise but I feel resentful and frustrated. I just want to be loved properly.

■ DEIDRE SAYS: He has never shown interest in sex, so he probably thought that was acceptable to you – but maybe you expected that would change.

Tell him you have found you cannot be happy without physical affection. Say you understand he can't help the way he feels now but you would like him to get help.

My e-leaflet How Sex Therapy Helps explains.

Dear Deidre

MY girlfriend who I've been with for a year has chosen greed over love and eaten my Easter egg.

I'm 24, she's 21. I miss my parents buying me an egg, so I bought myself a lovely big one this year.

When I got in one night last week and went to the fridge, the egg was gone.

My girlfriend admitted she had eaten it when I was out – she said she had a chocolate moment – and found it funny.

She has crossed a line. How can I ever trust her again?

■ DEIDRE SAYS: Obviously your girlfriend misjudged your reaction but it would be a shame to let something like this wreck an otherwise good relationship.

She obviously thought you would find the disappearance of the egg funny, too. Now she has learned this is not the sort of thing you find amusing.

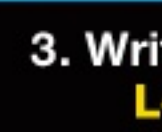

If you love her, perhaps you should just buy another egg – they'll be on sale now.

GUY MUM AND DAD CHOSE IS NOT RIGHT

Dear Deidre

JUST six months from now, I should be getting married – but I am wondering if I have made the right decision.

Our parents agreed that this guy and I should get engaged but we haven't met yet. We video-call.

I am 23 and he is 25. I was happy about it, as he seemed such a nice guy at the start of our relationship. Now I am not so sure.

He often criticises the way I look and what I am wearing. He wants me to wear make-up, which I don't like doing except on special occasions. He wants me to take off my scarf to show my hair.

I don't always say I love him when replying to his texts. He complains about that, too.

If he really loves me then I feel it should be for the person I am.

■ DEIDRE SAYS: You are right. He is not showing signs of loving you for the girl you are, only for the girl he would like you to be.

That is no basis for marriage and a lifelong relationship. He will undermine your self-confidence. Arranged marriages can work very well but best tell your parents you've realised this guy isn't right for you. I hope they will understand.

I FEAR I'M TOO OLD TO LEAVE MY WIFE

Dear Deidre

IT'S no longer possible to have a good relationship with my wife – I've tried – but I am petrified of starting out again at the age of 49.

I used to love her but am not so sure any more. We have been together for 20 years and married for 15. We have a daughter who is 18.

There has always been a clash of personalities but it's getting worse.

I do everything around the house, as well as keeping a more-than-full-time job.

My wife helps part-time in a charity shop and tells everyone I do nothing.

If I say anything, she yells obscenities. I cannot have a proper conversation with her.

Only the fear of the unknown keeps me here.

■ DEIDRE SAYS: Your wife must be as miserable as you. Try being understanding, say you are worried because she is clearly feeling low. See if you can get her to talk without it turning into a row.

If you get nowhere, say the two of you need to go for family mediation to end your marriage in the least damaging way – for the two of you and your daughter.

TURN OFF TO STRESS LESS

By KRIS HALLENGA

DID you know April has been Stress Awareness Month?

I often get asked how I cope with the stress of cancer. Well, I've worked out a life where cancer doesn't rule it. Of course, I get "scanxiety" when my scan times come around but, in between, I am OK.

When things are tough, I head outdoors. I know I bang on about cold-water swimming but it really helps my mood.

I have become good at saying no to stuff, putting what I need ahead of what others expect. I ask myself what's the worst that would happen if I don't go to an event and the answer is usually not life-threatening.

A good night's sleep helps me stay stress-free – I love a delicious eight hours.

Recently, I have been more conscious of how social media affects my mood. It's good to set boundaries.

Blurt Foundation, a social enterprise helping those with depression, have tips for how to stay happy in our digital era...

- 1 Use your phone's silent mode. Blurt say "utilising this mode allows us to choose when we check our phone or laptop, rather than have a 'ping' grab our attention" – and I agree. Otherwise, my heart races when I hear my phone.
- 2 Turn off notifications. Do you need to know when someone has "liked" one of your Instagram posts? Probably not.
- 3 Curate your digital timeline. Only follow people online that make you feel good or inspired, or make you laugh.
- 4 Hide your phone. For me this is helpful because, as soon as I see my phone, I feel the need to pick it up.
- 5 Buy a watch. The less we rely on our phones, the less we will look at them and get drawn in by their mighty pull.
- 6 Set expectations. We expect replies to texts immediately. Remember, when we relied on letters they took longer.
- 7 Turn everything off at night. I set my phone to flight mode and lay it far from my bed so it doesn't disturb me.

SIMPLE FOOD SPICED APPLE TACOS

Celebrity MasterChef 2017 winner Angellica Bell has released her first children's cookery book, Fantastic Eats! & How to Cook Them. (Makes 20 to 25)

YOU NEED:

5 large flour tortillas
60g unsalted butter
150g granulated sugar
2 tsp ground cinnamon
4 Granny Smith apples
1 tbsp fresh lemon juice
1 tsp grated nutmeg
Small can of whipped cream

METHOD: Preheat oven to 200C/400F/gas 6 and grab a 12-hole muffin tin. Cut four to five circles from each tortilla, using an 8cm cookie cutter. Put the circles on a plate.

Melt butter in a bowl in the microwave, or over a low heat on the hob, and put two tablespoons into a bowl for later.

Mix the remaining melted butter with 50g of sugar and one teaspoon of cinnamon. Then cover the tortilla circles in the mixture.

Turn the muffin tin upside down and place the tortilla circles in between the muffin cups – folded in half into a taco shape.

Bake for five to six minutes, until crisp and turning golden. Take tortillas out of the oven and carefully remove them from the tin with tongs.

Repeat until all tortilla circles are cooked.

Peel and core the apples and chop into small pieces.

Put apples into a saucepan with the lemon juice, rest of sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg and leftover melted butter.

Stir over a medium heat for ten minutes until soft. Remove from heat and leave to cool. Taste apple mixture to make sure that you are happy with flavours, adding more lemon juice, sugar or cinnamon if you like.

Spoon the cooled apple mixture into the crisp taco shells and top with a squirt of whipped cream.

DAUGHTER'S PROMISE

I can die happy now I know that my Erin, 17, will be 'mum' to her siblings

By BELLA BATTLE

WHEN mother and daughter Jo and Erin Devereux are together, their laughter is infectious.

But behind their smiles lies heartache as single mum Jo has terminal cancer.

And Erin, 17, is about to become a full-time "mum" to siblings Liam, 11, and Lily, nine.

Jo, 44, is not close to her ex or family and sees Erin as "the perfect choice" to raise the youngsters. "She's a born carer," she adds.

Last July, Jo was given a terminal diagnosis but has already lived two months beyond doctors' predictions.

Yet the devoted pair – who describe themselves as "inseparable" and "best friends" – are both determined to stay upbeat for Liam and Lily. Erin puts it all down to wondermum Jo.

She says: "Mum is amazing. She keeps smiling, no matter what. When I heard she had six months to live, I could have fallen apart."

"But I felt strangely calm and unfazed. Mum said, 'It'll be fine, we'll get through this together,' and I knew she was right. She makes everyone happy with her energy."

Chest pain

For her part, Jo, from Newcastle, is making plans to keep her beloved kids happy long after she has lost her fight for life. She has written all three Christmas and birthday cards until they are 30.

She has also set up a Facebook memorial page where she regularly posts her favourite family memories, songs and funny videos.

Jo says: "I'm worried they're going to be sad, and even worse, that the little ones will forget me. I want them to feel I'm still with them every step of the way so I've made each of them a memory box.

"Inside is their baby clothes, birth certificate, notes from me and the birthday cards. Each is different – for Liam's 18th I've written that I hope he's sowing his wild oats!"

"I remember my grandma died just before Christmas one year but we still opened our presents from her on Christmas Day."

"It was magical, like she was still there. I hope my kids can feel that same magic when I'm no longer there for them."

Jo was first diagnosed with triple negative breast cancer in December 2015 after noticing puckering.

Chemotherapy and a mastectomy put her in remission the following year but she was warned her rare form of cancer could well come back.

So when Jo began to feel chest pain, fatigue and shortness of breath in early 2018, she knew something was wrong. But nothing prepared her for the shock news at a routine check-up last July – her cancer was

FAMILY... Jo with kids and her dad Peter

TO TERMINALLY ILL MUM

BRAVE... smiling for camera with Liam

17 years on this Earth with them, I'm still blessed. I know Erin will make an amazing mum.

"She's got a heart the size of Newcastle. I just hope I've taught her enough."

Erin says: "Every now and then I'll have a little cry, but I know I'll manage when the time comes. My boyfriend Lee has been incredible – his family are like my family now. And my grandad got in touch after not seeing Mum for 24 years recently so I'll have some support."

Legal guardian

"I've helped raise the kids since they were born and I'd do anything for them. Now I joke with them, 'As soon as it's me in the house, there's going to be rules and chores.' Mum is way too soft on them!"

Erin will become Liam and Lily's legal guardian when she turns 18 in December and will raise them in the family's council house. Looking ahead, she admits it will be tough and says: "It's Mum's warmth I'll miss most. That and us watching Jeremy Kyle together!"

"I don't think Liam and Lily will cope with losing her. But I will follow her example by filling their days with laughter if I can."

"I'm getting a car and I've already planned family trips to Scotland and the zoo. I'll try to make it as happy as possible."

"Mum would hate the thought of us sitting at home miserable." As for herself, Erin dreams of being a singer and is set to audition for The X Factor this year.

Jo says: "She sings like an angel. I've told her I want her to sing for me one last time at my funeral. I want it to be the brightest, happiest funeral anyone's ever been to."

"But I hope I'm here for a good while yet."

EVERY parent knows that toddlers and tantrums go hand in hand. Luckily there are a few tricks you can use to keep your cool – and Junior's too. Here, parenting expert Anna Williamson tells BELLA BATTLE her foolproof guide to stopping a strop in its tracks.

1 DISTRACT THEM: Tantrums are often triggered by not being able to get something, with "I want" regularly ringing in the ears of every parent in Britain.

But children have active imaginations and can be very fickle.

So divert their attention as quickly as possible by distracting them with a toy, an impression or simply just pointing to something in their eyeline, such as a dog, a train or an aeroplane.

2 KEEP CALM: A sure-fire way to make a tantrum ten times worse is to mirror your child's temper and volume. It can be so difficult not to snap and tell them off, but often this only fuels the tantrum and creates more of a fiery situation.

HOW TO GET A STROP TO STOP

The aim is to get them to mirror your behaviour, so keep calm and try to reason with them.

Explain that until they stop, you won't be able to understand them properly or help them.

3 ASK, LISTEN, TALK: Children are far more emotionally intelligent than we often give them credit for. Ask your child what's wrong, be aware of their verbal and non-verbal cues – are they telling you something has upset them, or perhaps they are in pain?

Calmly listen and talk to them about how you can help to solve the problem.

Sometimes kids just need to vent and be listened to without being told off for it.

4 OFFER A CHOICE: How many parents face the vegetable-versus-chocolate predicament?

You want your child to eat green stuff, they want to eat sweet stuff, so a stand-off ensues.

Avoid a battle of wills and keep control by offering them a choice, where ultimately you win.

For example: "Would you like broccoli or carrots? You only have to pick one." They will enjoy being allowed to make a choice and not feel cornered into a "no option" scenario.

Praising their "good choice" adds even more positive reinforcement.

YOGI CARE

THESE photos show the amazing bond between giant French mastiff Yogi and his best friend, little Ivy Walker.

They met as babies but, while four-year-old Ivy now weighs just 2st 7lb, Yogi is a 14st hulk. Ivy's mum, Chloe Martin, brought Yogi home as a ten-week-old pup four years ago and has documented the friendship between him and Ivy in a series of snaps.

She says Yogi – who is 5ft 11in standing on his hind legs and weighs the same as a newborn elephant – is soppy and no danger to Ivy or her other kids, Lola, eight, Harlow, seven, and Indie, two.

Full-time mum Chloe, 27, of Milford, Surrey, says: "Yogi looks like a beast but is the most loving, soppy dog. He is just a big, friendly dope."

Chloe and Ivy's dad, builder Ross Walker, 29, introduced her to Yogi when she was five months old. Chloe recalls: "They were smitten from day one. They were babies together and home all day while the older two were at school. It's like he thinks they are brother and sister.

"Yogi would only sleep next to Ivy. I'd often lay Ivy down on the settee for a nap and Yogi would jump up there straight away, snuggling in next to her.

'Pretend patient'

"Sometimes Ivy would fall asleep on top of Yogi and they'd snore away, two peas in a pod.

"If we took Yogi for a walk, even if he wasn't on a lead, he'd stay by her buggy.

"If someone he didn't know came into the house, he'd dart over to protect Ivy until he knew she was safe. Even now he stays close while she falls asleep."

Like any devoted friend, Yogi is up for whatever game Ivy fancies – even if that means an occasional pedicure.

Chloe says: "Ivy's favourite shade is bright pink, which I don't think Yogi is too keen on, but he still sits patiently while she coats each nail.

"He lets Ivy dress him up. She drapes him in Ross's hoodies. Yogi isn't fussed.

"He is the perfect pretend patient for Ivy when she takes her doctor's kit out. He will pretty much let her do anything she wants. He's constantly giving her loads of kisses and trailing after her.

"He's great with all of the girls. If any of them are under the weather, he will stay close. But Ivy is his clear favourite.

"I trust him with the girls completely, though I'm never far away anyway."

Although Chloe says Yogi is harmless, she is aware that not everyone feels the same way.

She says: "People cross the road when they see him. Others drag their children away.

"I've had people accuse me of having a pitbull and tell me he should be muzzled.

"But he's got a lovely temperament. As with all dogs, it's down to the owner as well.

"If you raise a dog right, you get a good dog."

FLEX APPEAL FOR CHORES

WOMEN get four and a half hours of leisure time a week less than men, research shows.

The "free time" they do get is eaten up by housework, list-making and planning.

When it comes to unpaid chores at home, the Office for National Statistics found that women do almost 40 per cent more than men.

And author Annie Auerbach believes that as traditional roles for couples have changed, women face more of an uphill battle with extra pressure to be perfect at home and at work.

It can be exhausting, she says. But she offers solutions in her book Flex: The Modern Woman's Handbook.

She explains: "When you 'flex', you learn to look at the patterns of your relationships and work out how to make changes according to your family's individual needs.

"We need to take a look within and ask, 'How can I work to the best of my abilities at work, while being the mum or partner or friend I want to be at home?'"

Here, NATASHA HARDING shares her top tips for "flexing your home".

MAKE A LIST

Write down all the chores that are done in the home. Be awe-inspired at the amount you currently do. Be shocked at how little anyone else is doing.

DIVIDE AND RULE

Allocate some time with your partner to discuss who does what and to share out the workload. You could start by working through each room and noting jobs associated with that room.

You could then think in terms of tasks that are daily (cooking, cleaning, childcare); weekly (food shop, scheduling play dates), and yearly (purchasing insurance, the car's MOT).

It is not about a 50/50 divide. It is about being happy with your lot.

NEGOTIATE

Be sensitive. This conversation may be fraught. A good approach would be to appreciate and acknowledge what each of you is doing before explaining what you would like help with. Then barter.

You may hate doing the laundry but not mind doing the Hoovering. Could you use that as a bargaining tool?

ROLE MODELS

Model good behaviour for your children so they do not just associate women with the home and men with work. For example, men can pack for the holidays, women can take the bins out.

LET GO

Do not micro-manage the to-do list, or feel like you need to beg for help each time something needs doing.

Encourage your partner to take responsibility for a whole task area.

For example, whoever is in charge of school shoes needs to know the kids' shoe sizes and when to buy new ones.

THINK FUTURE

Discuss a longer-term vision of the lives you want to live and work out priorities within that.

If you want the right amount of time to focus on your career, is there an opportunity for you to do that while your partner's career takes a back seat for a set period of time?

WE spent millions of taxpayers' money on Harry and Meghan's Frogmore Cottage - and now we will have to spend the same for an African home. They make me sick.

SIMON, Shepperton, Surrey
IT'S all very noble what the climate change protesters are doing, but why aren't they blockading the places that are churning out toxic fumes 24/7?

PETE, Lincs

breaks the rules of Transport for London.

JACKIE LEWIS
Pattigham, Staffs

I COULDN'T have put it better than Sun on Sunday columnist Tony Parsons, whose piece on eco-wallies stopping traffic in London made me smile.

If you asked some of them what they would do to save the planet, I bet not one could give a sensible answer.

Because at the moment I don't think there is one.

ANTHONY DIGBY
Wisbech, Cambs

THIS month, there has been a veterans' motorcycle rally and a peaceful march by people in support of Soldier F, who faces murder charges over the Bloody Sunday shootings.

But I didn't see either event reported on television news programmes.

Yet the news is full of these Extinction Rebellion eco-protests, which are causing severe problems for people trying to carry out a day's work.

MICHAEL MORGAN
Portsmouth

WHAT are we to think when people who supposedly care about the planet leave London's Hyde Park covered in litter?

CHARLOTTE PRIMROSE
Lawford, Essex

NEARLY every school at the moment is complaining about funding. But we hear in the news that one school has employed someone to change nappies.

What is wrong with people these days when they do not even toilet-train their children?

We had four sons, all of whom were toilet-trained before going to school and could recite the alphabet and count to 100.

This was the norm in the Sixties and Seventies.

Now parents appear not even to try to get the basics done, relying on others to do the dirty work for them.

Parents who send children to school who are not toilet-trained should feel really embarrassed.

PETE MARNEY
Gorleston, Norfolk

LABOUR Deputy Leader Tom Watson reckons that now is the time for a second referendum on Brexit.

But this man is a member of the party that said at the last General Election it would honour the result of the 2016 referendum.

Does Mr Watson realise that 60 per cent of Labour constituencies voted to leave the EU?

ARIES March 21 - April 20

Fresh ideas you believe in could transform your work life and you get a good response from co-workers. But a serious note in your voice means when you want something done, it gets done. If you start the day single, love is full of surprises when someone you were not initially attracted to suddenly seems perfect.

TAURUS April 21 - May 21

Your sign is so adventurous, with time and space to express deep desires. This time, you can make them happen. An event that links generations is the spark. Your exceptional learning ability draws you to unlikely subjects. Venus goes deeper into the secret sector of your chart to reveal two unknown admirers.

GEMINI May 22 - June 21

Today is all about who you want to be and how you can get there. Transformation powers in your chart are at a 12-month high. Instead of being held back by others' needs and views, follow your own star. It leads to greater independence and equality within a relationship. Single? Check out that Libra again.

CANCER June 22 - July 22

If official agreement has been an obstacle to progress, you see a way through it and can work out what you really want. For those in love, this is so different to what you were telling yourself. If you are single, a job linked to the law is a major love signal. The kind of luck that reunites families is linked to heart-warming TV.

LEO July 23 - August 23

Refocus all that positive effort you pour into others' plans on yourself. You will move forward faster than you expected on so many levels. With a career map full of twists and turns, you could impress everyone by showing off your smarts. If you are single, passion puts an unexpected name in your mind.

VIRGO August 24 - September 22

The moon and Neptune focus on plans for a new house and what started as a clash of opinions about where you should live can be talked through to find agreement. This gets life moving faster in an exciting direction. If you are single, your most fashionable friend makes an introduction to quicken the pulse...

LIBRA September 23 - October 23

Breaking family silence is simpler when you look forward rather than back and ask for a fresh set of promises or ideas. You are ready to step away from pride and reconnect on every level. If you are in love, Venus is ready to compromise. Single? Say yes to a quiz invite. One of the contestants is just right for you.

SCORPIO October 24 - November 22

Your personal style of learning and listening is transformed and you shine when you win an opportunity to study the one thing that means the most to you. It brings you closer to a career dream. When you say what you need, the right people will listen. As for romance, a name starting with "T" is a hot clue.

SAGITTARIUS November 23 - December 21

At work, you can get to the top by being 100 per cent yourself. A project that tested your self-belief and patience could now take off. If some members of the family do not understand your love decisions, time will prove you chose well. Fancy-free? Another Sagittarius could be amazing - if challenging - to love.

CAPRICORN December 22 - January 20

Your sign shimmers with potential and untapped natural talent. When you add planning and hard work, success will be all the sweeter because you will know you sweated for it. If you are looking for love, you could meet that special someone while searching for a relative's wedding gift.

AQUARIUS January 21 - February 18

New aspects of you are surfacing, catching those around you off guard - but surprising yourself even more. A flair for politics or showbusiness local talent via a drama group or football team is too good to waste. Playing it cool in a love-bond is easy but when you show your deepest feelings, very special words are spoken.

PISCES February 19 - March 20

You may not be a fan of maths but with numbers planet Mercury in your money chart, you get a new understanding of cash. How you work out the cost of a home project generates confidence in you. If you are free to start a new relationship, Venus matches you this time with someone who truly appreciates you.

If you don't feel confident enough to do the work yourself, you can use a recommended builder from the company's own Approved Installer Network. You get peace of mind that the builder is recommended, and yet you still enjoy huge cost savings.

Lowest Price Guaranteed

At ConservatoryLand®, you're guaranteed to find the lowest prices in the UK. National Sales Manager, Rob Smith, is proud of the company's heritage and their many thousands of satisfied customers.

"We manufacture all our own conservatories and supply them direct. No middleman, no salespersons commissions, and no profits made on surveys, groundwork, brickwork or installation. All these cost savings are passed on to our customers."

Smith is confident of their price-match guarantee, too: "If you can prove you've found a cheaper offer," he says, "we'll match it and give you £100 cashback upon delivery."

Free delivery to your door

ConservatoryLand® use their own fleet of vehicles and drivers, eliminating any risk of damaged goods when using third-party carriers. And their conservatory kits are delivered to your door for free!

The company manufactures the complete conservatory — the frames, the roof and their very own optional steel base, floor and wall system (ConservaBase®) — giving them complete control over the products and service they provide. And, according to National Sales Manager, Rob Smith, ConservatoryLand® customer service lasts way beyond the point of sale.

"We are always there to help with all aspects of your conservatory. No delays, no fuss... just perfect results, guaranteed!" "There are no hidden extras," he continues. "We always quote for a fully functional conservatory. For example, nobody wants a conservatory that is too small to be of use, or one that has inadequate ventilation."

What others charge for as 'optional extras' come as standard at ConservatoryLand®. As the company grows from strength to strength, one of Rob Smith's proudest achievements is the number of existing customer recommendations.

"We are extremely proud of our many thousands of satisfied customers who happily recommend us to their family, friends and neighbours," he concludes.

Fantastic service, fantastic product. I can't believe we finally managed to get a stunning conservatory at a fraction of the price. The steel base frame made the installation easier and we completed the conservatory in 5 days. 100% recommend!" Mr & Mrs Hill, Kent

TURMERIC & HONEY HEALTH UPDATE - BY SIMON PORTER

FAST ACTING DOUBLE STRENGTH FORMULATION

Linda has suffered from ill health for the past few years. She simply thought it was because she was getting older and the aches, pains, sore joints and lack of energy would be something she simply had to live with and cope with daily. Linda tells us how Biovit Turmeric & Honey formulation has changed her life for the better.

"My husband noticed that I was getting more tired and fatigued over the last few months. He noticed that I wasn't as busy as I used to be. I loved being busy and filling my day with all sorts of activities from shopping to gardening to walking my dogs in the early morning to make the most of each day. This tiredness, fatigue and ill health seemed to be getting worse on a daily basis. I felt my energy and happiness diminishing. I knew I had to take control and do something to turn this situation around and get back on my feet."

"I was getting more tired and fatigued over the last few months"

"I read several articles about the health professionals have been studying the miraculous health benefits of turmeric and honey. These two ancient natural health remedies are now being used in health

"Tiredness, fatigue and ill health seemed to be getting worse on a daily basis. Until I found Turmeric and Honey" research to help people just like me."

"the miraculous health benefits of turmeric and honey"

"My husband was recommended by one of his work colleagues about Biovit Miracle Turmeric & Honey. It had worked wonders for his overall health and gave him back the spring in his step that he'd been lacking for months. I had nothing to lose so I decided to try this for myself and see if it could make a difference in my life and get me back to good health."

"I had nothing to lose"

"I simply took two easy-to-swallow tablets a day and after the first week I started to notice my wellbeing returning. My legs didn't feel so heavy and my energy levels were starting to come back to normal. My digestion was better, and I felt less tired and achy."

"I started to notice my wellbeing returning."

"My husband a short while later actually commented on my improved energy and wellbeing. He and I were both impressed by this miraculous ancient health remedy. It has worked for me and I'm now back doing the things I love. I would say try it for yourself and see the health benefits."

"try it for yourself and see the health benefits."

TEMPLEGATE

★ KING OF COMEDY (3.35 Yarmouth, nap) can laugh at his rivals with superstar Frankie Dettori in the saddle. He won well at Sandown on debut before looking green and unsuited by the soft ground when second at Redcar. John Gosden's Kingman colt should progress well this season.

★ NEW JAZZ (8.10 Wolverhampton, next best) can kick off her season with a win. She showed plenty of promise last term when third on Newmarket's July Course and this step up to a mile looks a wise move.

★ AIRWAVES (4.05 Yarmouth, treble) has won both her runs on the all-weather in good style and has a lot more to offer on turf over this ideal trip.

LAM... hair raising

Lam eyes on Wigan

Salford.....26 Wigan.....30

ADRIAN LAM might need a hairpiece if he takes over Wigan full-time.

Zak Hardaker clinched victory after missing a conversion that would have made it 26-26.

And with Shaun Edwards now not coming, Lam said: "I'm going to lose my hair in the next couple of weeks, I think!"

"A little bit of brilliance got us over the line but if we continue to lose leads, we're going to struggle."

Tries from Joe Burgess and Joe Bullock plus a penalty put Wigan 14-0 up.

Joe Greenwood also crossed twice but George Griffin, Niall Evalds, Adam Walker and Joey Lussick put Salford 26-20 ahead.

Red Devils boss Ian Watson admitted: "Little errors have cost us."

Wakefield...26 Leeds...24

TEARFUL Lee Kershaw made a fairytale debut as Wakefield heaped more misery on Leeds.

The 19-year-old winger was drafted into the side as Trinity are without 12 senior players.

And his 60-metre opener sent Chris Chester's men on their way to victory.

Chester beamed: "Lee was fantastic. He's a little bit emotional after that."

Rhinos chief Dave Furner said: "We need a bit more control."

Hudd'field..24 London..19

FURIOUS Danny Ward claimed even opposition players said Alex Walker scored on the final play.

The Broncos full-back touched down but the referee ruled it out.

London boss Ward blasted: "Alex told me he scored it. Their players said he scored it."

"We've got 17 lads in there with their pants around their ankles."

Hull KR.....6 Warrington.....54

TOM LINEHAM hit back at home taunts with two of Warrington's nine tries.

Stefan Ratchford kicked nine goals with Wolves' other tries from Joe Philbin (2), Blake Austin, Bryson Goodwin, Toby King, Josh Charnley and Sitaleki Akauola.

Warrington coach Steve Price said: "It's a group who really care about each other and it showed in the performance."

Rovers had led 6-0 courtesy of Ben Crooks' tenth-minute converted try.

Their coach Tim Sheens said: "We are in a hole and it's going to be a dark place until we get players back."

LINEHAM

Catalans.....37 Castleford.....16

JULIAN BOUSQUET bagged a double to keep Dragons in the play-off mix.

Tony Gigot, Greg Bird, Matt Whitley and Sam Tomkins also went over for Catalans - with Tomkins adding all six conversions.

A Greg Eden brace plus a Cory Aston try, both converted by Peter Mata'utia, was not enough for Castleford. The teams are now level on 15 points.

The Tigers, however, are in fourth spot while the Dragons occupy sixth due to their points difference.

Good 'QAWA' Four-try Kev a cracker for Saints

By MARK MASON

JUSTIN HOLBROOK says the best is yet to come for his four-try Fijian Kevin Naiqama.

Saints' centre, 30, was everywhere as they hammered Hull.

Coach Holbrook said: "Kevin is starting to really step things up."

"Now the better weather is here and the dry tracks are coming into play, we'll be seeing the best of him."

"Kevin's getting really comfortable in this side now and he's understanding the combinations a lot better. He's been fantastic."

Adam Swift also bagged a hat-trick, Jonny Lomax scored two in his 200th career game and full-back Lachlan Coote finished with 20 points from a try and eight goals.

St Helens.....62 Hull.....16

All that came after Hull looked set to spring a surprise as they led 10-0 after ten minutes.

Joe Westerman and Carlos Tuimavave scored tries to lead the Humberiders' early charge but it proved to be a false dawn as Saints cut loose.

Lomax raced in for two tries in three minutes, Naiqama crossed on the right edge before Lomax connected with Coote to send in Swift.

Coote added the extras from the touchline and minutes later goaled again from bang in front of the posts after walking in his own try.

Hull did get a try back eight minutes into the second half as Jez Litten sprinted over after the Airlie Birds kept the ball alive on the sixth tackle.

But order was restored as fast hands by the Saints backs gave Swift the chance to score out wide.

The winger dived over in the corner for his treble, Naiqama then got his second, before adding two more after Jack Welsby's 69th-minute effort.

Shellshocked Hull boss Lee Radford said: "If that's the top of the table, then we've clearly got some work to do."

COLOUR OF MONEY... Woods wins The Masters

Golf so red for Tiger feat

DAVID Facey KEEPS HIS EAGLE EYE ON THE WORLD OF GOLF

WHAT'S red and green, and reigns supreme in Augusta?

Yeah, that is an easy one. Unless you were on the moon during The Masters, you could hardly have missed the return of the classic Tiger Woods combination, pairing his Sunday power colour with his favourite shade of jacket.

But the new outbreak of Tigermania was already gathering pace long before Augusta.

His return to form last year - which included taking the lead on the back nine of The Open, finishing second at the USPGA then storming to victory at the Tour Championship - persuaded an extra TEN MILLION Americans to show an interest in golf.

And events at Augusta have pretty much guaranteed it will also happen everywhere else the game is played.

America's leading grass-roots organisation, the National Golf Foundation, say the number of people watching and reading about golf - and showing an interest in playing - rose to 74 million in 2018, up from 64 million in 2017.

Foundation head Joe Beditz said: "You could make the case that an increase in participation took place due to Tiger."

"Looking back 20 years or so, to when Tiger started dominating the game, minority and female participation is now up 50 per cent. When Tiger is in the news and in the lead at tournaments, he attracts more attention to golf."

The organisers of the USPGA, which moves to its new spot in May, have already told their members to cash in on Woods' return.

Within a few days of his Masters triumph, the PGA of America urged their 29,000 members, mostly teaching pros, to "take full advantage to promote your programs to a newly engaged audience."

"Tiger has put golf on top of people's minds in a way that transcends sports."

So what chance of red and Bethpage Black proving another irresistible colour combo at the USPGA from May 16-19?

Don't bet against it. Turkish Airlines now operates daily flights from Gatwick to the golf hub of Antalya - and carries golf clubs free.

BETFRED WORLD SNOOKER

HAO IT'S DONE... Murphy sheepishly hails whitewash

Hong out to dry in record Crucible loss

By ROB MAUL

LUO HONGHAO is officially the worst player in Crucible history.

The Chinese debutant lost 10-0 to ruthless Shaun Murphy in the first round of the World Snooker Championship – only the second ever whitewash in the tournament.

And his shocking points tally of 89 was the lowest total ever posted in the competition.

Danny Fowler previously held the record for the fewest – 191 – from his 10-1 defeat to Stephen Hendry in 1993.

Qualifier Honghao, who wore a pair of bizarre spiked shoes for this hammering, is considered by many as one of the rising stars of the sport.

The 19-year-old said: "I felt so nervous and couldn't focus on the game. The crowds and lights were too much, I didn't feel comfortable."

"Shaun told me, 'Don't feel sad. You can come back here and win'."

"The Crucible is a dream for every player but my technique and skill aren't good enough yet. The other players are too strong."

"If I get back here, I hope I can play better."

The first person to lose without winning a frame was Eddie Charlton, who was spanked by John Parrott in 1992.

Fowler, who retired in 1997, is happy his record was eclipsed.

The former world No28 said: "If I had known, I would have been watching a bit more closely and counting the points!"

"I like following the game but I didn't expect to be back in the news."

And Murphy, the 2005 champion, now meets in-form Neil Robertson.

Murphy said: "Never in my wildest dreams, given how bad my season has been, did I think I would come here and win 10-0."

"Luo has had a great rookie season and will do damage in years to come."

"The Crucible is like that. I lost on my debut and felt crushed.

"But if you want to be a winner, you shrug things off."

RONNIE O'SULLIVAN trails amateur James Cahill 5-4 heading into today's final session.

Snooker legend Steve Davis, 61, said: "He is all over the place and playing as if he doesn't want to be out there."

JOHN HIGGINS beat Mark Davis 10-7 and vowed to give his match-winning bottle of fizz to his brother Jason, who fractured his kneecap in a freak fall.

Three-time world champion MARK SELBY came from 5-1 down to win 10-7 against Chinese qualifier Zhao Xintong.

DEC 10, 2011 v LAMONT PETERSON

On the end of massive onslaughts in third and seventh rounds in a controversial points defeat which cost him his WBA and IBF light-welterweight title belts.

JUL 14, 2012 v DANNY GARCIA

Lost WBA light-welterweight crown (after Peterson's failed drug test saw him reinstated) inside four rounds after hitting the deck three times.

APR 27, 2013 v JULIO DIAZ

Won a tight points decision after surviving fourth-round knockdown.

MAY 7, 2016 v CANELO ALVAREZ

Knocked spark out by a monster right hand in round six in his brave bid for WBC middleweight crown, and was taken to hospital.

SEP 8, 2018 v SAMUEL VARGAS

Points win was marred by being sent to the canvas in round two.

BASHED... Khan bears scars after Crawford loss

Love match

AMIR FACES BIG BATTLE WITH MISSUS

JUST when you think Amir Khan has had his last meaningful fight, he now faces the toughest one of his career.

Left battered by Terence Crawford, the 32-year-old ex-world champion must convince terrified wife Faryal, 27, to let him fight on.

On Saturday WBO welterweight king Crawford floored Khan with a head shot in round one and belted his crown jewels in the sixth.

A confused combination of Khan and trainer Virgil Hunter told referee David Fields that the low blow was forcing him to quit – and the stigma is likely to tarnish his reputation after a brilliant career.

But Khan is ready to do the hard rounds to convince Faryal his future remains in the ring.

He said: "My wife hates me fighting. She's always afraid. She just says, 'I turn my phone off and I'm always praying and I don't know what's happening'."

"She has never been a fan of me being in the ring. But it's just going to be for this one time in my life and then after that I can spend the rest of my life with my family. I have to be ready to finish. I don't want to finish thinking, 'Could I have fought again?'

From WALLY DOWNES Jr in New York

"You have to do it at the right time, it has to be a solid decision. Retiring at the wrong time would haunt me. I don't want to retire and then come back. When I call it a day, I call it a day."

Just a few hours after getting beaten up in Madison Square Garden and slaughtered on social media, Khan invited the British press up to his hotel room.

Heartbroken still, the Bolton star now has to explain the welts and scratches on his face to his eldest daughter, four-year-old Lamaisah.

But at least he will be close to her after 12 weeks locked away in his San Francisco camp, while she has been attending school at home in Manchester.

He said: "We've been apart for three months but now my daughters can be cuddled up with daddy."

"Lamaisah gets upset when she sees the marks because she understands now and it's not nice. Everything I do is for them, including getting hit in the face."

Khan could yet land a grudge match with Kell Brook. But after TWENTY FOUR years of training, running, sparring and dieting, he admits to eyeing up his release from the what he compares to a lengthy prison sentence.

He said: "I started training aged eight and retirement would take a lot of pressure off me."

"When I do anything I think about boxing first. When I go out with my friends or on vacation I think about boxing first."

"Everything I eat I think about boxing first. It would take a lot of pressure off once I've retired. You are then a free man."

LASCELLES... worries

Lascelles' Rafa plea to Toon

By DAVID COVERDALE

JAMAAL LASCELLES fears Rafa Benitez will quit — and wants owner Mike Ashley to pull out all the stops to keep him.

Newcastle boss Benitez is out of contract in a few weeks and is no closer to agreeing a new deal.

Toon skipper Lascelles, 25, said: "There aren't many managers like him and Newcastle should do everything to keep him."

"He is special. Since he's been here, we've been doing really well. The players want him here."

Benitez took over in March 2016 and was unable to avoid relegation.

But he led Newcastle to the Championship title and a tenth-place Prem finish last term before keeping them up again.

Lascelles believes the secret to the Spaniard's success is making players desperate to impress him.

The centre-half added: "He's a perfectionist. It's about learning."

"That's why I've come on leaps and bounds."

Toon midfielder Miguel Almiron's season appears to be over after being ruled out for three weeks with a hamstring injury.

His father Ruben told Paraguay's ABC Color: "It's because of the load of matches he's had. Now he's going to rest."

Fan brawl at KCOM

HULL and Sheffield United face an FA probe after shocking fan violence at the KCOM Stadium.

Blades fans appeared to have tickets in the home end as boss Chris Wilder's visitors continued their bid to win promotion to the Premier League.

Punches were thrown in horror scenes in the North Stand — it is alleged United supporters were celebrating David McGoldrick's tenth-minute opener in the 3-0 win.

Police officers and stewards rushed to the scene before some fans were escorted out.

The FA will investigate and a spokesman said: "We will be liaising with the clubs and Humberside police."

AJAX? I NEED VM 'N VIGOUR

Poch up for it

TOTTENHAM have to scrub Ajax from their minds if they want to shine in the Champions League again next season.

Spurs host the Dutch giants in the first leg of their semi-final next Tuesday — in what is one of the biggest games in the North Londoners' history.

But in terms of booking their place in next season's competition, tonight's Premier League visit of Brighton is even more important.

Mauricio Pochettino's men may be in the last four but with their squad depleted by injuries and Liverpool or Barcelona awaiting in the final — if they do manage to overcome Ajax — even the most ardent supporter would admit it will be a big task for their team to qualify as winners.

So if Spurs are to remain in the Champions League, the likelihood is they will have to finish in the top four, which is by no means guaranteed.

Maurizio Sarri's Chelsea side missed the chance to leapfrog Spurs into third after being held 2-2 at home to Burnley last night.

Spurs are level on points with the Blues albeit with a game in hand. But they sit just one point above Arsenal, while sixth-placed Manchester United are a mere three points behind.

After sealing an away goals victory in the classic 4-4 Champions League quarter-final crunch at Manchester City last Wednesday, Tottenham lost 1-0 when they returned to the Etihad in the Premier League on Saturday.

Another poor result in the top flight at home to the Seagulls tonight and against visitors West Ham on Saturday, and Pochettino's men may well find they will have to lift the Champions League trophy in Madrid on June 1 to compete in it again next time.

Spurs boss Poch said: "I think it is so clear we have two alternatives. One is to be the top four at the end of the season and the other is to beat Ajax.

By PAUL JIGGINS

"We're not thinking about Ajax, like we showed at Manchester City on Saturday. We showed we were thinking of the Premier League."

"Now our energy is on Brighton. But we have to go step by step. That's important."

"The players know it. Their behaviour and mentality is perfect."

"You know very well I don't need to tell them. I think they were very professional against City, the performance was very good and very professional."

City edged it 1-0 thanks to Phil Foden's early diving header.

Tottenham now have three home matches in a row — having won all three they have played at their new stadium so far, scoring seven and letting in none in the process.

Pochettino added: "I hope we keep going."

"Of course it is going to be fantastic and it is going to be very helpful for us to play in our stadium in front of our fans."

"I hope and wish to keep the same results as the previous matches."

PLACE IN THE SON... Tottenham will need Son Heung-min to be firing if they are to finish top four

Chris blast for Invincible Mart

By ALEC SHILTON

CHRIS HUGHTON has hit back at Martin Keown's suggestion Brighton's players have "downed tools" and are relying on results elsewhere to avoid relegation. Arsenal Invincibles legend Keown accused Albion of lacking effort during their five-match winless streak.

Asked whether he agreed, Seagulls boss Hughton (left) said: "No, I certainly wouldn't. As with all pundits, it's their job and responsibility to say what they think."

"We are a team of our level playing in the Premier League and up until probably the last month or so, we've been in a decent enough position in the league."

Former Spurs player and coach Hughton, 60, takes his team to the Londoners' new stadium tonight.

He added: "I was there for 27 years and I have lots of memories. I'm looking forward to going. How much I'll enjoy it will be down to the performance."

leg in Amsterdam the following Wednesday.

Sissoko, 29, was crocked in last week's away goals win over Manchester City in the quarter-final.

And boss Pochettino revealed: "He is not going to be fit for the next two weeks. I hope he can recover before but I'm not optimistic."

Injured Harry Kane is already out of both games against Ajax and Son Heung-min is suspended for the first leg.

Another midfielder Harry Winks has also missed Spurs last three matches with a groin injury.

And Pochettino confessed he has no idea when the 23-year-old England man will be back.

He said: "It's a problem that one day is very good and one not so good. It's about assessing every day. We will see, maybe he will be available soon... but I'm not sure."

Right-back Serge Aurier suffered a hamstring injury playing for the Ivory Coast last month and has only just returned to training.

But keeper Hugo Lloris could return against Brighton tonight after missing Saturday's 1-0 loss at City with a muscle problem.

BABEL... quitting

Babel off to save his caps

By PAUL JIGGINS

RYAN BABEL wants to quit relegated Fulham for the sake of his international career.

The 54-times capped Dutchman's short-term contract runs out at the end of the season.

And after failing to help keep the Cottagers in the Premier League, he is not planning to hang around.

The Holland winger, 32, admitted: "I am at the stage where I have to make the right decision."

"I want to play in the Euros next year if we qualify, so there are a lot of factors for me to make the right decision."

"I have enjoyed myself at Fulham and I think I have shown I can still play in the Premier League."

"I still have two or three years ahead of me."

"I am aware I need to play top-flight football to have a chance of playing for Holland at the Euros."

"The Prem would be my first choice. But there has to be interest and at the moment, there is not."

While Babel wants to leave, he is urging the club to stick with Scott Parker.

Caretaker Parker has bounced back from losing his first five games by sealing back-to-back Prem wins.

Babel said: "If he stays on as manager, I am sure Fulham have a good one in-house."

ARIGHT COATING

Sarri sees Blues bid crash 'n Burn

ON the hottest Easter Monday ever, Maurizio Sarri watched wearing a full-length hooded parka.

But then neither Chelsea's eccentric manager nor his team seem to behave like anyone else any more.

After Gonzalo Higuain slammed in his first goal for nearly seven weeks to put Chelsea 2-1 up after only 14 breathless minutes, the coat was tossed back into the home dugout.

At 34 minutes, tracksuited Sarri was mopping heavy beads of sweat off his brow.

By half-time, he was straying absent-mindedly into the Burnley technical area, aimed a few words at their assistant manager Ian Woan and had to be ushered back to his chair by bemused fourth official Roger East.

Then, as Chelsea went into meltdown with a result that blows a huge hole in their top-four ambitions, it got worse.

Sarri was forced to get his coat — and his cigarettes — and head down the tunnel, having been sent off by referee Kevin Friend for striding 40 yards down the touchline to join in a player bust-up at the end.

The chaos just about sums up Chelsea's oddball Italian coach and his team as we approach a full — and possibly only — campaign under his erratic management.

They were a goal down from dreadful marking on eight minutes, level four minutes later and ahead 120 seconds after that.

Then more disastrous positioning at the back and Burnley were back in it again. It made for a cracking match, though.

Higuain finally scored a goal with a bullet shot so, of course, his team-mates forget how to defend.

Underneath it all is Chelsea's worrying ability to shoot themselves in the foot just when everything seems to be going their way.

By ANDREW DILLON

Defeats for top-four rivals Tottenham, Arsenal and Manchester United had third place on a plate, waiting for them to grab it.

A point lifts them to fourth but having played a game more than those around them.

There is a distinct feeling that this was a chance missed.

Just like all the chances they missed last night against a game Burnley side who knew when to hoof the ball but also when to caress it like a newborn baby.

Visiting boss Sean Dyche, dressed more appropriately in a shirt and tie, knew he could make the most of set-pieces against an unreliable Chelsea defence — and did just that. And that is what really makes Sarri — and anyone who pays to watch his team — feel the heat whatever the weather at Stamford Bridge.

David Luiz, on his 32nd birthday, while not directly at fault for the two Burnley goals was certainly heavily involved in both.

The Brazilian defender conceded the corner from which Jeff Hendrick was given time and space to pick his spot and smash home a superb volley from the edge of the box.

And a clumsy foul in the middle of the park handed Burnley's big boys a gift of a chance to pump a free-kick into the box from which came a shock leveller courtesy of another impressive finish.

Ben Mee, a tower of strength for the away team, met the curling delivery with a powerful header across the six-yard box. It got a tiny flick on from the head of Chris Wood and Ashley Barnes was unmarked at the far post to drill the ball home.

With less than 25 minutes gone four goals had gone in to set up a cracker of a match.

It enabled Burnley to touch the magic 40-point mark, even though relegation has long since been a major issue.

There was a double injury blow to Chelsea, too, with Callum Hudson-Odoi and N'Golo Kante coming off.

And try as he might, Eden Hazard was unable to ride to the rescue.

The Belgian had chipped two defenders, left one on his back-side and set up N'Golo Kante for a crisp left-footed equaliser in the first half.

By the end of the second he was trying rabonas in the box and all sorts of tricks to try to nick three points they did not really deserve.

Hazard was sweating more than anyone out on the pitch in blue — he was an inspiration.

Sarri's temper eventually boiled over when both sets of players joined in a bundle over a disputed free-kick.

It summed up what was a deeply frustrating night for the men in blue.

after he limped off in the 41st minute. The 18-year-old tweeted: "Really gutted to end my season with a ruptured Achilles, got to work hard and try and come back stronger for next season."

N'Golo Kante also suffered a rib injury and the Frenchman is a doubt for Sunday's trip to top-four rivals Manchester United.

At the final whistle there were ugly exchanges between the benches, with stewards stepping in to separate the two sides.

Sarri skipped his usual post-match press conference and Zola said: "He's very frustrated, so he'd prefer not to come over. 'He's been sent off. I think he's been offended as well, so he didn't feel it was right."

"But you can understand. He's frustrated at the game, frustrated at being sent off and the other thing."

Zola would not elaborate on what was said to Sarri but Chelsea plan to make an appeal to the FA over his 95th-minute red card — the Blues' first of the season. The flashpoint is expected to be included in Friend's report to the FA today.

Jeff Hendrick gave Burnley an eighth-minute lead before they were pegged back by goals from Kante and Gonzalo Higuain.

But Ashley Barnes levelled in the 24th minute as Burnley shut up shop.

Chelsea defender David Luiz, added: "We tried everything to win. It's difficult against a team who have two chances and score two goals and didn't want to play the game."

"It's anti-football. It's difficult to score a team like that."

Tempers boiled over at the end as Burnley's goalkeeping coach Billy Mercer appeared to clash with Chelsea staff, while injured defender Antonio Rudiger was also involved.

Burnley boss Sean Dyche said: "I don't know what you are allowed to say any more. Man bags handbags, bumbags, some kind of bags in the tunnel."

"I didn't see much of it, I was out clapping my fans, who came out on a Bank Holiday again."

DANE PAIN . . . Foster wants Sir Elton (inset) at final

Cancel Your Song, Elton

Watford v Southampton

7.45PM

By MIKE McGRATH

BEN FOSTER has urged Elton John to ditch his concert in Copenhagen for the FA Cup final.

The former Watford chairman's tour hits Denmark on the same evening as his team's bid for glory.

And keeper Foster insisted: "It's no dilemma. He should cancel it right now."

"I don't think you could have predicted this at the beginning of the season. But as it wore on, it became obvious we had the chance of doing something."

Sir Elton's busy schedule also means he will not be able to record a special Cup final song ahead of the May 18 clash against Manchester City.

Foster will start against Southampton tonight but is set to miss out at Wembley too — as Heurelho Gomes has been in goal for FA Cup games.

Foster said: "Heurelho deserves it, he really does. He has been absolute class, not only with me when I signed, but throughout when he has been playing."

"I think if the manager was going to change something, he would have done it in the semi-final."

"But when you are talking about someone like Gomes, there is no risk, there is no worry."

"It is not like it is a step down or anything. He is a class goalie."

Boss Javi Gracia's side could also qualify for Europe with their Premier League finish, with Foster adding: "It keeps everyone going."

"And I think it can be underestimated just how important having a Cup run can be for a team of our ilk."

"There are a lot of players who aren't involved on a Saturday."

"It keeps them interested because they know they could be one injury (to a first-team regular) away from playing in a Cup final at Wembley against Man City."

"It keeps people at the top of their game."

WATFORD (likely): Foster, Femenia, Mariappa, Cathcart, Mesina, Doucoure, Capoue, Hughes, Pereyra, Deulofeu, Gray.

AUSTIN'S RALPH KO

CHARLIE AUSTIN has been told he can leave Southampton, with boss Ralph Hasenhuttl planning a summer clear out.

Striker Austin, 29, turned down a move to the Championship in January and has played just 246 minutes of Premier League football this year.

Hasenhuttl, whose side visit Watford tonight, said: "Charlie is very clear on the situation that he must find another option where he plays more often."

"It depends how much he wants to play."

"That's a situation you can handle for a few months or even a year but not for five years because you are not born as a footballer to sit on the bench."

"If he comes to me and says, 'It was very nice to help you but I want to play and that's why I want to leave', I'm the last guy who says you can't."

Other players who will fall foul of Hasenhuttl's revamp include defender Jack Stephens and keeper Fraser Forster.

Out-on-loan trio Cedric, Jody Clasie and Wesley Hoedt also face the chop. SOUTHAMPTON (likely): Gunn, Vestergaard, Yoshida, Bednarek, Valery, Højbjerg, Romeu, Bertrand, Ward-Prowse, Ings, Redmond.

Emery's fear

UNAI EMERY will carry on rotating his squad despite Sunday's shock home defeat by Crystal Palace.

The Spanish boss made seven changes from Arsenal's midweek win over Napoli, only to see his side blow their chance to go third in the Premier League by losing 3-2.

But the Gunners have crunch matches at Wolves tomorrow and at Leicester on Sunday before next Thursday's first leg of their Europa League semi-final against Valencia at the Emirates.

Emery said: "We have had some injuries, like with Aaron Ramsey, and we need to protect the players."

"Granit Xhaka had to come off against Napoli. He could have played against Palace but it would have been a risk. We lost to Palace — but we could also have lost with other players on the pitch."

Xhaka could return from a hip problem at Molineux but fellow midfielder Ramsey is still out with a hamstring strain picked up in Italy.

11 ASHLEY BARNES has scored 11 PL goals this season, the joint-most by a Burnley player in a single campaign in the division (also Danny Ings in 2014-15).

1,000

JEFF HENDRICK'S strike was the 1,000th goal Blues have conceded in the Prem — the ninth club to do so. (Everton 1,309, Spurs 1,302, West Ham 1,268, Newcastle 1,231, Aston Villa 1,186, Soton 1,079, Liverpool 1,044, Arsenal 1,005, Chelsea 1,001).

The Manchester City star became close to the lad when he supported a campaign to find him a suitable stem cell donor.

Sadly, Damary died of leukaemia aged 13 last month.

No red carpet for Kyle'n Co

KYLE WALKER says there is no way Manchester United will roll out the red carpet for City tomorrow — even if their own fans want them to.

The England right-back knows the majority of United fans are desperate to see Liverpool miss out on the Premier League title.

So most will not be worried if City win their game in hand at Old Trafford to go back top.

Walker has been told that many times when he has bumped into members of the public while out walking his dog.

But he does not believe the mixed feelings in the stands will have any effect on how Ole Gunnar Solskjaer's men approach the game.

He said: "United fans are in a difficult situation. When I'm out and about or walking my dogs, United fans are coming up to me saying, 'We'd rather City win the league than Liverpool'."

"It's strange to hear but I can assure you the United players aren't going to leave a red carpet and say, 'Go on City, score past us'."

"They're going to make it difficult because it's a game of football and they're fighting for the top four as well so they need the points."

The teams met in a crucial game a year ago when United came back from two goals down to win at the Etihad.

the title in front of their own supporters — and in a derby.

They still went on to win the league at a canter though so, in many ways, this game will be even more important.

Walker said: "We could have won it against them last season and they scored a couple of good goals and got the victory."

"That was probably what every United fan wanted with City not winning the title at the Etihad against United."

"So we don't owe them one because we won against them earlier in the season."

"But it's one for the fans and for us to get closer to being the Premier League champions."

Kevin De Bruyne will miss the game after injuring a hamstring during Saturday's 1-0 win over Tottenham.

Van Utd plea

VIRGIL VAN DIJK has told Manchester United they MUST beat neighbours Man City — but not to help his Reds' title dream.

The Merseysiders need their old rivals to take points off City to boost their chances of a first Premier League crown.

But fresh from United's humiliating 4-0 defeat at Everton, Van Dijk said:

"They need to do themselves a favour. Everton is not easy to beat at home, but 4-0 is a big result."

"They are still playing for Champions League football and they need to get a result."

Dutch defender Van Dijk (right), 27, says Liverpool are only focusing on their own games. He added: "We have three games left and we are going to try and win all of them. It's going to be very hard, but that's what we're looking to do."

WITH Ole Gunnar Solskjaer at the wheel, Manchester United looked to be steering towards a new dawn.

Now six defeats in eight — culminating in a horrific 4-0 loss at Everton on Sunday — has brought the dark clouds back.

Here, SunSport's NEIL CUSTIS looks at what is going wrong on and off the pitch.

BIG NAMES, SMALL PERFORMANCES

The troubles run from the goalkeeper right through to the strikers.

There is no doubt David De Gea's form has dropped dramatically. Yes he can still pull off brilliant saves, as he did against West Ham, but the clangers against Arsenal, Barcelona and Everton are a major concern.

The stand-off in his contract negotiations is clearly having an effect on his psyche.

In defence, it has been tough on Ashley Young getting all the blame but a new right-back is needed. The pairing of Chris Smalling and Victor Lindelof in the middle has potential but if one of them is out, it all falls apart.

In midfield, Fred has been another major transfer letdown. Nemanja Matic was starting to look like a steady influence but his lacklustre attempt to close down Gylfi Sigurdsson on Sunday was alarming.

Up front, Romelu Lukaku is looking a static target man again, although that could be put down to how United are playing.

Marcus Rashford's form is in and out, another whose head might be being turned. Anthony Martial remains an enigma, while the spark Jesse Lingard used to bring has long gone.

SANCHEZ MONEY MADNESS

United fought so hard with neighbours City to get the Chilean they ended up paying him £505,000-a-week and that's where the problems began.

Because Sanchez has been so poor, every player whose contract has since come up for renegotiation compares their contribution to his.

De Gea and Rashford are not accepting what is being offered.

Elsewhere, United could lose Juan Mata and Ander Herrera when their deals run out because they are asking for too much based on Sanchez's wage.

These are two players who had a huge galvanising effect off the pitch.

But with them disaffected, their influence has waned.

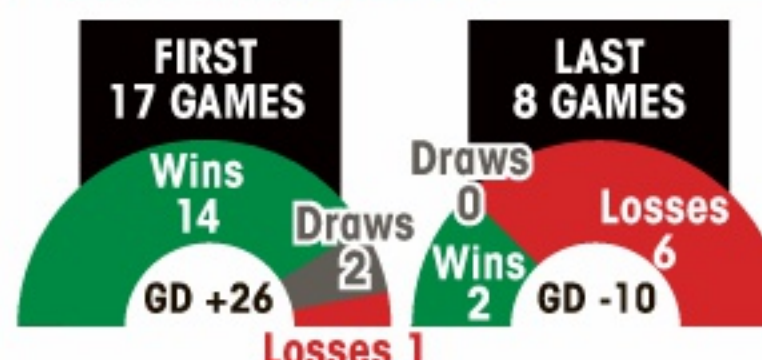

Mata was on the bench yesterday and Herrera is missing with a mystery injury.

season in front of goal of Pogba's career.

Yet the French World Cup winner was bought for much more than this and has simply not produced.

The problem is he was a good player in a VERY good Juventus side.

He came to United needing to be a very good player in an average side and has not been able to be that.

At first he tried to do too much, now he doesn't do anywhere near enough.

The size of the task looks to be too much for him.

His clashes with Jose Mourinho helped bring an end to the former manager's reign and now he is not responding to Solskjaer.

The fans would not be bothered at all if he was sold tomorrow.

IS OLE THE WHEEL DEAL?

Little blame can be laid at the feet of Solskjaer, who has been sending out all the right messages and has at least given United a chance of reaching the top four.

The one mistake he may have made was approaching the Champions League first leg against Barcelona too negatively, which caused frustration within the team.

He has to be given time to implement his ideas as it was clear from his opening spell of 17 games just what he can do.

PANIC IN THE BOARDROOM

It is easy to point the finger of blame at executive vice-chairman Ed Woodward but he has backed his managers with big money generated by the incredibly successful commercial arm of the club.

The problem is a lot of it is very short-term thinking.

The constant changing of managers is unsettling, as is the changing of personnel. The spurious of cash on big names like Sanchez has caused so many problems.

The hand on the tiller needs to be steady now or the United rollercoaster will continue to ride out of control.

THE NOISY NEIGHBOURS

City's success across town has undoubtedly put more pressure on each manager and the United board.

There is a sense they have been walking on sand in their attempts to catch up.

The more money they throw at it in a bid for a quick fix, the more they stand still.

City had a long-term vision. United need one too and for everyone to be patient while they see it out.

A NEW MAN UPSTAIRS

The example of Txiki Begiristain across at City is another United need to look at.

While Woodward can bring the money in, he does not to give everything but nothing comes of it.

"Everything went wrong but the most important thing is the mentality that we put on the pitch — that has to change."

Pogba, in an interview with Sky Sports, said the players listened to boss Solskjaer as the horror show was dissected at full-time.

Pogba added: "We let the manager speak, the staff speak and they spoke the truth."

"They said what happened in the game and it is not respectful for ourselves."

"What we showed on the pitch, we did not give them the joy back and that's why we are angry with ourselves."

"We want to do better and we have to. The reaction has to be there."

"What I understood on this is when you wear this shirt at this club it is, first of all, because you deserve it."

"But when you deserve it, you have to work and respect the culture, the history of this club and give everything."

"I don't want to be harsh with my words but we don't want to look like we did against Everton because the body language was not good enough for this shirt."

"You have to work, you have to sweat for this shirt and you have to give everything."

Solskjaer apologised to the United fans at full-time at Goodison Park and Pogba echoed his manager's words.

He said: "The fans want a reaction from the players."

"And the only way to apologise to them is to give everything on the pitch, do our best, create chances, score goals, defend, work for the team."

"And we can even lose games, but with a good performance and pride on the pitch."

A victory in tomorrow's derby might help of course. Pogba said: "This derby wants love, adrenaline, you play for the shirt with two teams in the same city and you want to beat them."

"We are Manchester United and we play to win trophies."

"Last year, we didn't win any and this year again, and now if we don't get into the top four, it is a very disappointing season."

"It is not good at all for this club."

EUWOEPA LEAGUE...

MANCHESTER UNITED will face pre-season tour problems if they finish sixth and Watford win the FA Cup. They would have to play a Europa League pre-qualifier at the same time they were due to play Tottenham in Shanghai.

have the experience of Begiristain when it comes to making signings.

He is a former Barcelona player and director of football who is deep into the network of managers and agents across the game.

That experience is vital in establishing targets but more importantly getting them signed and sorted before anyone else.

They need that sort of man — it is not clear whether Mike Phelan, a coach, will be it.

PS... THE DREADED MANCHESTER DERBY

So, do United have any hope against City tomorrow night? On the evidence of Sunday, absolutely not.

If the players have any pride, then yes.

The problem is that if both sides play at their very best, City will win.

BUTT'S BACK TO WORK

NICKY BUTT is pictured back at Manchester United's training ground for the first time since his arrest last week.

United's academy chief, 44, was bailed without charge after being nicked on suspicion of assaulting a woman at the marital home he once shared with ex-wife Shelley Barton.

Ash still has fire

ASHLEY YOUNG admitted there really is a crisis if Manchester United cannot get themselves up for tomorrow's derby.

A 4-0 hammering at Everton on Sunday was United's sixth defeat in eight, with title-chasing neighbours Manchester City the visitors at Old Trafford.

Defender Young said: "If you can't get yourselves up for a Manchester derby then there is something wrong."

"I've got confidence in every player that we are going to be ready on Wednesday."

"We have to dust ourselves down quickly and go again."

in their pursuit of a top-four spot, with both Tottenham and Arsenal also losing.

They have three games left after City — Chelsea at home on Sunday before they travel to Huddersfield and then face Cardiff in their final fixture at Old Trafford.

Young (right), 33, said: "It's four winnable games."

"If you went back to October and said we would be in this position, we'd have taken it."

"But a club like Manchester United should be looking much further up the table."

"It is going to be tough — but I'm sure we can do it."

CALLUM HUDSON-ODOI dealt England and Chelsea a major blow after being ruled out for several months with a ruptured Achilles on a night of drama at Stamford Bridge.

Blues boss Maurizio Sarri was sent off by ref Kevin Friend following a bust-up between Mateo Kovacic and Burnley's Jack Cork in injury time of the draw, which hit their top-four hopes.

His No2 Gianfranco Zola revealed Sarri was "frustrated and offended" by alleged abuse from the visitors' bench.

Hudson-Odoi will miss England's bid for Nations League glory in Portugal in June

PAUL POGBA says Manchester United's shocking display at Everton disrespected the club and the fans.

United lost 4-0 on Sunday, with just one shot on target in what many regarded as the worst Red Devils performance since Sir Alex Ferguson retired six years ago.

MARCELO BIELSA conceded Leeds are resigned to the Championship play-offs after crashing at Brentford.

The Yorkshire side were denied a cast-iron first-half penalty when Patrick Bamford was tripped by Julian Jeanvier. Then goals from Neal Maupay and Sergi Canos left Bielsa's men with a mountain to climb if they are to nab second spot.

Boss Bielsa said: "I'm very sad. We had hoped to finish first or second but, with this loss, it's going to be very difficult."

By ANDY BAKER

CHRIS WILDER is on the brink of the greatest achievement of his career – but the Sheffield United boss is not ready to celebrate just yet.

David McGoldrick's two goals made it 15 for the season as United moved within touching distance of the Premier League.

Rivals Leeds' 2-0 defeat at Brentford last night means the club need four points from their final two Championship games to be sure of ending their 12-year top-flight exile.

Wilder admits leading his hometown club into the Premier League with a second promotion in three years would be the icing on the cake for his impressive CV.

They face rock-bottom Ipswich at Bramall Lane on Saturday and then Stoke away in the final game.

But the 51-year-old lifelong Blades fan warned: "We're ticking a lot of boxes with the way we're playing but we can't get ahead of ourselves."

"We've just got to get our heads and prepare well for the next game."

"The players know and understand the challenge ahead of us and we're focused to make the most of our next opportunity on Saturday."

"Our league position speaks for itself and I want us to go out and do ourselves justice by finishing the season on a high."

"We've got to make sure we're absolutely spot-on for these last two games by doing the things that have got us in the position where we are now."

United showed no sign of promotion-jitters as they surged into a three-goal lead at the break.

Unmarked McGoldrick gave them the perfect start inside ten minutes when he rose unchallenged to head in John Fleck's near-post corner.

And it got even better for the visitors on 22 minutes when McGoldrick highlighted the confidence flowing through the side by thumping a 20-yarder over Hull keeper George Long.

Recalled defender John Egan wasted a golden chance to pile on more misery for ex-Blades boss Nigel Adkins when he headed Fleck's corner wide.

But the 4,000 travelling Blades fans did not have long to wait for the third goal as Enda Stevens struck for the second time in three days, heading home an inviting cross from fellow wing-back George Baldock three minutes before the break.

Hull's fading play-off hopes were finally ended by a third straight defeat in the space of ten days.

But Adkins said: "A lot of people tipped us to go down this season so it's tremendous credit to the players to have got to this point and still be in with a chance of the top six."

PUL OUT THE STOPS

TONY PULIS has admitted Boro's next game is now a 'must-win' after their play-off bid suffered a big jolt at Nottingham Forest.

Middlesbrough needed victory to boost their hopes of finishing in the top six, but you would not have guessed it as Pulis' depleted side crashed to their joint worst defeat of the season.

Boro dropped to seventh, after Derby beat QPR 2-0, and the Rams and Bristol City in eighth have a game in hand. Pulis says three points from the visit of Reading on Saturday is crucial. He said: "We've got to win our next game – and we've got to make sure we're ready."

Pulis bemoaned the absence of defenders Daniel Ayala, George Friend and Dael Fry but his team never got going.

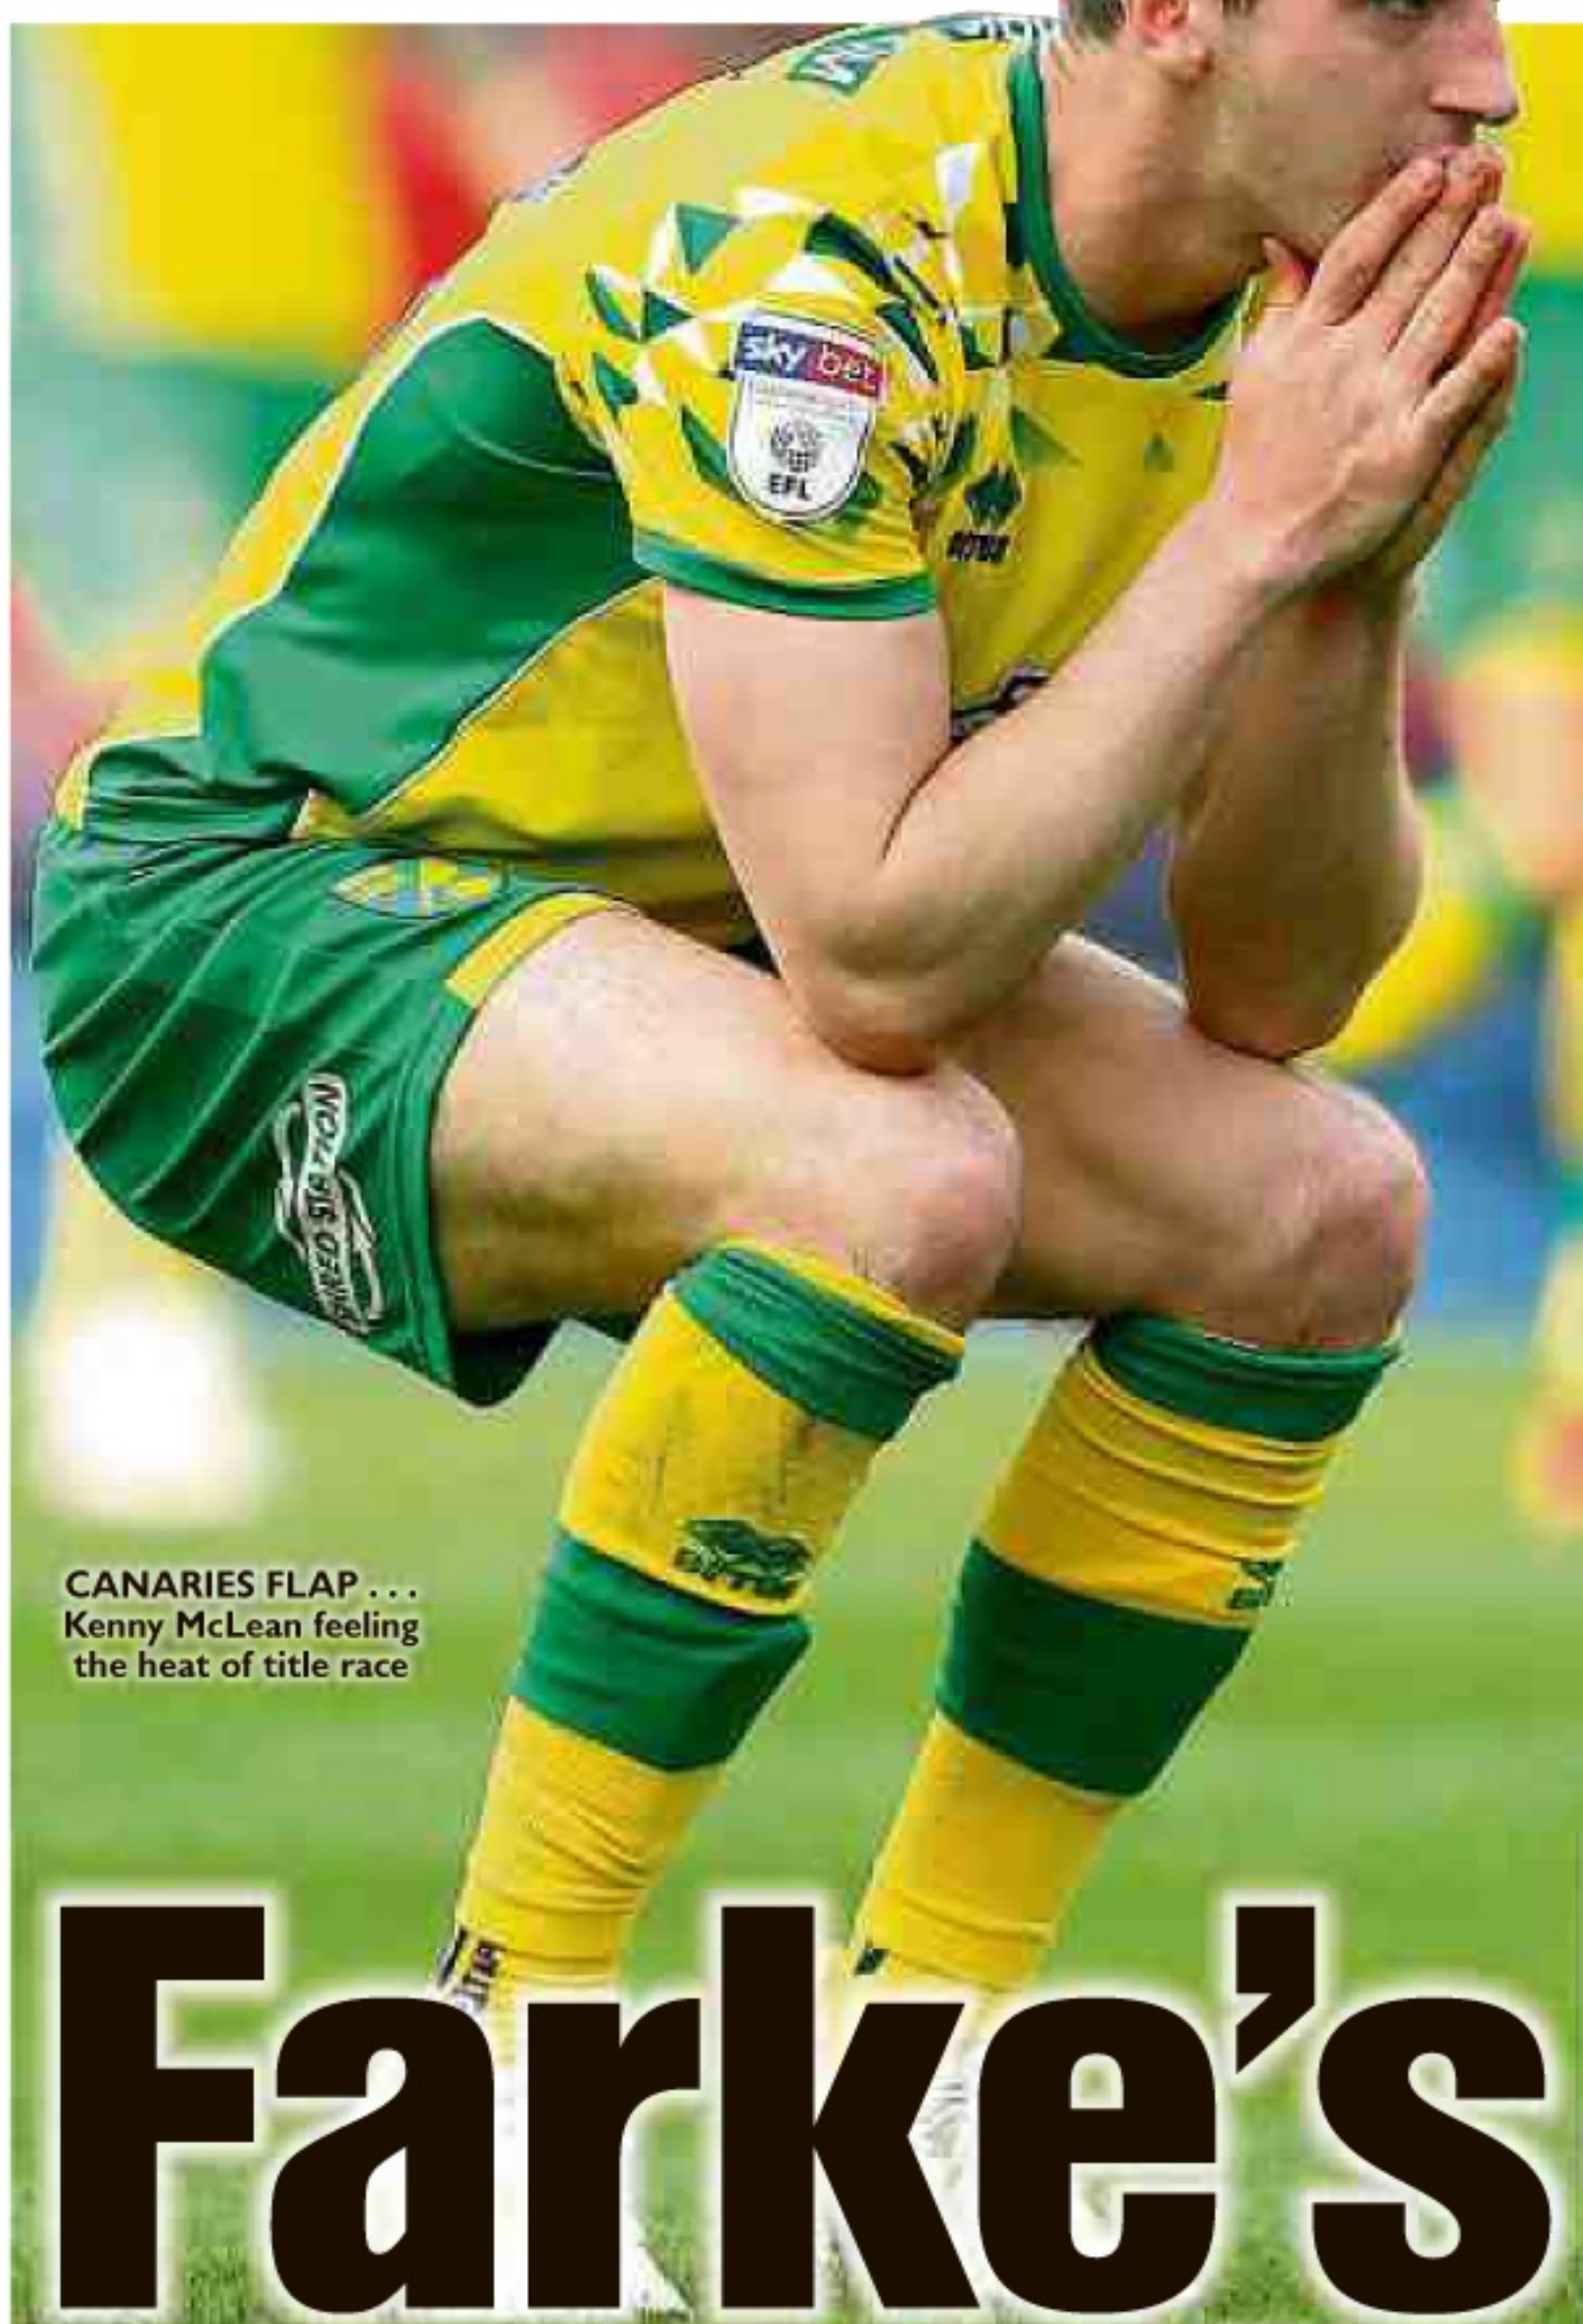

The Boro chief added: "We played with more forwards than I've ever played with and you want them to do a lot more."

10 VILLA have won ten straight league games, their longest ever winning streak. No side are on a longer run (Man City also 10).

Farke's wobble

BUT DAN IS COOL

By MATT PARKER

NORWICH are taking the scenic route to promotion as they stumbled to a fourth draw in a row.

Having looked odds-on to wrap up a place in the Premier League after eight straight wins, they have a proper case of the jitters.

They could have secured promotion yesterday if they had won and either Sheffield United and Leeds had failed to match that.

But the Canaries did not manage to complete their side of their bargain, despite twice taking the lead.

The Championship's leading goalscorer, Teemu Pukki, made it 28 for the season, but his second-half strike was not enough this time.

Canaries boss Daniel Farke remained positive. He said: "The young lads were disappointed because they felt we were close."

"The three points would have made life easier. But when you fight for the Premier League, it never comes easy."

"There is no reason to doubt ourselves or be too disappointed."

"We are on a 12-game unbeaten run. We are the league leaders with a three-point lead - 23 clubs would like to change position with us. So it's up to me to go to the younger players and say, 'Everything is OK'."

Nearly 3,000 Canaries had made the trip across from East Anglia, with 6,000 more watching back at Carrow Road - and they were ready to party in the first half.

In a dominant opening 45 minutes, Onel Hernandez's fierce shot that flew into the net was the least they deserved.

But they were stunned by a headed equaliser from Ashley Williams straight after the break.

Pukki restored the visitors' advantage as he glanced a header past Jack Butland.

Yet they were ahead for only three minutes as Tom Edwards levelled for a second time with a piledriver into the far corner and were unable to find a third goal.

It was a strong second half from Stoke, which pleased manager Nathan Jones.

He said: "Norwich came down from the Premier League with a hangover. They had to change everything at the club but they kept faith in what they did and now they are reaping the rewards."

Big Ben strikes at last

By KEN LAWRENCE

BEN BRERETON started repaying a little of his £7million fee - and the faith shown in him by boss Tony Mowbray.

The Blackburn chief has insisted the 6ft striker, signed from Nottingham Forest, has the potential to become a top hit man.

Brereton had not scored in 25 games, but the ex-England Under-20 ace finally broke his duck against a relegated Bolton side, who were woeful.

Brereton beat Ben Alnwick 30 minutes in, with a finish of high quality.

Adam Armstrong flicked in the killer second on 50 minutes as Rovers sealed a fourth win in a row.

Brereton, 20, said: "I needed that goal and it's been a long time coming."

"The gaffer always says he believes in me and I'd like to think I gave something back with that goal."

Mowbray does. He said: "Ben is for the future and I believe he can be a wonderful footballer."

Trotters fans called for boss Phil Parkinson's head at the end, while players have still not been paid for March.

His No2 Steve Parkin said: "There were suggestions the players would go on strike over financial issues but that was never the case."

VILLA'S BIG RECORD

Aston Villa.....1
Millwall.....0

By GRAHAM HILL

RECORD-BUSTING Aston Villa sealed a perfect ten - and booked their place in the Championship play-offs.

Recalled Jonathan Kodjia's first-half strike was enough to turn this Villa side into the history boys.

They have never won ten league games in a row before, last winning nine way back in 1910.

But while the result was a landmark, the match was far from a classic. And boss Dean Smith admitted there was no time to celebrate, with a return to the Premier League still up for grabs.

He said: "If you'd asked me if we'd go on and win the next ten games at the end of February, I'd have said you're a little bit crackers!"

"I don't think, until I look back, I will realise what we've done, because my focus is on getting promoted."

"I'm already thinking of Leeds on Sunday. But in time I will look back and realise what we achieved."

"Aston Villa is an historic, great football club and to be the first manager to have achieved it is something special."

"I said to the players before the game that they have set standards and we want them to continue."

"There is still an awful lot for us to do. We hope there are five more games to go and we can win all five."

Villa's play-off place was confirmed as Bristol City and Derby still have to play each other.

And Smith said he knows the moment Villa turned from mid-table no-hopers into promotion challengers.

He added: "The turning point was half-time at Stoke. I got into the players a little bit and we've been excellent since then."

Kodjia was back in place of 25-goal Tammy Abraham, who was out with a shoulder injury.

And the Ivory Coast striker sealed the match after half an hour when he finished a move involving Jack Grealish and Anwar El-Ghazi.

Millwall made life tough but their keeper David Martin denied Villa a more comfortable scoreline.

And the Lions are still just three points above the relegation zone, albeit with a game in hand.

Boss Neil Harris said: "I'm dejected as the goal is poor by us. David Martin deserved a clean sheet."

"Our season can twist and turn on the back of Stoke and Bristol City."

"Stoke coming to The Den, an ex-Premier League team with a big following, should be right up the street of my players and our fans."

"We have to make sure it is a strong, hostile place on Saturday."

THUMPER...
Wilson nets his penalty

HARRY'S IN NO HURRY FOR BRACE

By JOHN CURTIS

DERBY gatecrashed the top six after Harry Wilson scored twice during 11 minutes of added time.

The Liverpool loanee winger ended a nervy afternoon for Frank Lampard's Rams, who climbed above Middlesbrough and Bristol City.

Wilson slammed home the first goal from the penalty spot after Luke Freeman fouled Jayden Bogle. Then he sidefooted in the second from a Jack Marriott pass with 101 minutes on the clock.

It was no more than Derby deserved after dominating the second half, when QPR were guilty of some blatant time-wasting.

Referee David Webb added on a sizeable chunk of time – and Wilson took full advantage.

Lampard said: "Well done to Harry because he had the balls to take the penalty, especially in injury time with so much resting on it."

"The penalty was apparently touch and go, but we've had some serious appeals that haven't gone our way."

"It is good when we are not at our best to fight and dig something out."

"We have our destiny in our own hands but there is a way to go yet and difficult games ahead."

Derby began on the offensive and Martyn Waghorn forced a save out of Rangers keeper Joe Lumley after flicking on a Wilson free-kick.

But the Rams looked jittery when the R's counter-attacked.

Keeper Kelle Roos reacted quickly to parry Nahki Wells' close-range effort after he had raced on to Josh Scowen's through-ball.

Derby looked more purposeful in the second period and Lumley smothered a dipping free-kick from Wilson, then denied Mason Mount at close range.

Rangers had chances,

Derby.....	2

especially when Tomer Hemed narrowly missed getting hold of Bright Osayi-Samuel's cross and Matt Smith headed wide. As time-added ticked away, Freeman got ahead of Bogle in the box but toppled the midfielder.

Instead of relaxing after the penalty, Derby pushed for a second, with Jack Marriott and David Nugent going close.

Lampard added: "We were off the pace in the first half but I told them the Bristol and Middlesbrough scores at half-time and that it was a chance to make the top six."

"To turn around a performance when we were not quite at it was a question for the players and they answered it."

On the time added on, Lampard said: "Their keeper did appear to have hold of the ball for about 25 minutes!"

QPR are safe from relegation and caretaker John Eustace said: "I didn't think it was a penalty, but it's not a problem and we've had lots of chances in the game."

"We got punished at the end. I've also never known so much added time before, but there are no excuses."

Fight but n LEEDS BLOW MORE CHANCE

By JUSTIN ALLEN

LEEDS have surely blown their chance of automatic promotion now.

This was so painful to watch.

Yet again the Yorkshire club dominated possession and created far more chances but they cannot finish.

And, worryingly if you are a Leeds fan, they appear to be getting worse in front of goal.

Confidence seems to be ebbing away and they have never been promoted through play-offs in four previous attempts.

It is a travesty it has come to this. Leeds were in the box seat. These final Championship games should have been a procession.

Now, incredibly, they could even end up playing Derby in the play-offs if the Rams keep hold of sixth spot.

What a twist of fate that would be. Marcelo Bielsa once again taking on the club he got caught spying on.

Where Leeds lacked a cutting edge in front of goal, Brentford were clinical.

Neal Maupay got things going with a thunderous 45th-minute effort after being brilliantly slipped in by Sergi Canos.

And then it was all wrapped up when Canos pounced in the 62nd minute to finish a fine move involving Ollie Watkins and Maupay.

It is true Leeds should have had a penalty when Julian Jeanvier tripped

Patrick Bamford in the first half with the scores 0-0. Maybe had they got that and scored, the confidence would have come flooding back.

Bielsa claims that the pressure of seeing the finishing line has not been a factor – and that his team have actually played beyond their limitations.

He said: "I'm going to paraphrase Tiger Woods. He says when you're fighting for something important, you have pressure."

"When something important is at stake there is pressure. But this team was never affected by pressure. Really never."

"If we want to speak clearly and say why we don't have ten points more this season, we just have to take a look how many chances other teams need to score one goal and how many we need to score one goal."

ROYALS ARE MADE UP

By OSCAR PAUL

READING fans will have raised an Easter toast or three to Birmingham last night for all but guaranteeing them safety.

The Madejski Stadium was bouncing at full-time as news of the Blues' 3-1 comeback win at Rotherham was confirmed.

Having battled among the bottom three all season, Jose Gomes' side are now six points clear of the third-from-bottom Millers and have a superior goal difference.

While the Royals' players lapped up the raucous celebrations at the end of a bog-standard affair, it was a far nerver atmosphere early on. Red-hot Yakou Meite and fellow frontman Nelson Oliveira hobbled off after just ten minutes.

But West Brom – guaranteed a play-off place – were too off the pace to capitalise, content with a sunshine stroll ahead of bigger challenges.

Boss Gomes said: "I thought the team fighting for promotion was Reading. We played with great personality, tried to play at all times and deserved to win."

"I didn't want to know the Rotherham score. My idea was to win the game. It was a fantastic atmosphere, the fans were amazing and I feel part of the family here. But the job is not finished and if we are not mathematically safe, we cannot relax."

"We must keep the same energy and mentality until the end of the season."

West Brom nearly nicked it in injury time when Jay Rodriguez hit the post.

Baggies caretaker-boss James Shan said: "The pitch was very dry and slow but we looked a constant threat in the final third."

"I was most pleased with the clean sheet and that can only hold us in good stead."

"We've got to create momentum in the last two games and make sure we're as tactically together as possible for that play-off charge."

Kiko Casilla made a truly wonderful save, turning around the post a Canos piledriver from the edge of the box. But Brentford moved in front when Canos played a lovely ball forward, catching Pontus Jansson out of position and cutting the Leeds defence open for Maupay to run on to and thunder his shot past Casilla. Yet Leeds, incredibly, missed another sitter, Roberts woefully shooting wide from an angle. Sub Stuart Dallas let rip from 25 yards and it was deflected over for a corner. Then Pablo Hernandez curled an effort woefully wide from 16 yards as the Leeds chances count continued to grow. Bamford then had another great chance but fired wide. But Brentford grabbed the second. Leeds lost possession, Ollie Watkins played the ball to Maupay, who slipped in Canos to net from close range. Mateusz Klich wasted another great chance before Brentford fluffed an opportunity to go 3-0 up. Canos raced forward on the break and tried to round the keeper but Casilla managed to force him wide and the chance was lost. Brentford boss Thomas Frank said: "I was pleased with the way we did it. It was a good performance and a well-deserved win. "We pressed them high and gave us great opportunities, which saw us get our two goals. "It was bang on." Tweet @justinallen1976

Sheffield United are three points behind. The Blades are a further three points clear of Bielsa's boys and a home victory against rock-bottom Ipswich on Saturday will all but seal Leeds' fate. Asked whether he was resigned to the play-offs, Bielsa added: "Yes, I think so. I know that maths defines things but reality looks like that. "The game today looked like many games. In a nutshell, when we dominated we couldn't score. When they dominated they could score. This is the summary of our season." Bielsa, 63, refused to get drawn into talking about the penalty decision which was waved away by referee James Linington. He added: "I don't want to judge and put pressure on them because they have the hardest job."

GARRY MONK reckons Birmingham have fought TWO successful relegation battles this season after they sealed their safety. Rotherham's Matt Crooks struck for the third time in as many games in the first half. But after the break, Jacques Maghoma's cracking shot was followed by Jota slotting home a Che Adams cross in the space of seven minutes. Kerim Mrabti capped victory in injury time with his first goal for the club. The defeat leaves the Millers three points from safety with two games left. financial issues saw them plunge from play-off hopefuls to relegation battlers. And boss Monk said: "It's taken a huge effort to achieve what we have done this season – twice! "This club has been fighting relegation on the final day far too often in recent years and we thought we'd avoided that a few months ago until we got the points deduction. "This has been the toughest season of my career with what we've been through." Millers now need a miracle to stay up and boss Paul Warne said: "Not getting the second goal was a big turning point. "At half-time life was looking half-full, but now it's looking half-empty. "But anything can happen in this league."

ROUT'S GOT THE CLOUT

By MEL HENDERSON

WAYNE ROUTLEDGE earned Swansea a rare away win to leave boss Graham Potter eyeing the play-offs.

The winger grabbed his fourth goal of the season as the Welshmen ended a nightmare run of seven straight away defeats. Potter saw his men climb to tenth, five points off the top six, and said: "We're going into the last week and it's still mathematically possible. "It's a small chance but our challenge is to make sure we win our three remaining games and see if 71 points is enough." Potter praised Daniel James, whose drive came back off a post for Routledge to net a 57th-minute clincher. James was also close in the fifth minute when he sprinted clear to beat Dean Gerken, only for the ball to drift wide. Potter added: "Dan was a constant threat and apart from his shooting decisions or execution I thought he was fantastic. "I'm pleased for Wayne."

He's had a tough season but he's handled himself impeccably throughout. "He's played a big part for us during the second half of the season and it was good he was able to influence the game." It was the same old story for Ipswich boss Paul Lambert, who has managed just three wins from 30 games in charge. Will Keane hit the post in the first half and sub Collin Quanan was foiled by Kristoffer Nordfeldt after breaking through. The Tractor Boys are going down but their fans cheered them all the way on a pre-planned lap of appreciation. Lambert said: "The level of support is phenomenal, second to none. "It was emotional and overwhelming – and I don't say that lightly. "There wasn't too much in the game. But it has been the same story all season – some good stuff but punished at the wrong end of the pitch."

PAUL COOK'S Wigan are staying up – with a little unexpected help from their friends.

The Latics survival a stormy derby that saw them handed the lead and then a one-man advantage by Preston's latest red card shocker. A rare clumsy mistake by classy Ben Davies saw Kal Naismith pick up his mishit clearance and roll the ball across for Leon Clarke to tap in the 11th minute opener. And there was another favour coming with Ryan Ledson claiming home skipper Samy Morsy elbowed him in the head. Wound-up Ledson was then sent off for a wild 34th-minute challenge on Naismith, catching him with a boot in the chest. Preston boss Alex Neil groaned: "We are the makers of our own downfall at times." Wigan still found it hard to subdue the ten men with Joe Rafferty's header shaving the post as North End looked for a leveller. Clarke nodded a Davies header off his own line and Paul Gallagher brought a super save out of Christian Walton. But Lee Evans drilled in a cutback that flew in off Jordan Storey on 68 minutes to kill the contest. Cook said: "It's been a long season. "In the darkest moments we all thought about relegation. But the league tables do not lie and our home form is up there with the top five. "I'm shattered – it's been tough. "We had some great help with the lad being sent off. But Preston were better than us even with ten men. We looked leggy and tired."

BRUCIE DOES WELL

By MICHAEL MORGAN

SHEFFIELD WEDNESDAY boss Steve Bruce is clinging to their dream of making the play-offs. Midlands duo Aston Villa and West Brom rubber-stamped their places in the end-of-season lottery yesterday. And that leaves the Owls battling Bristol City, Derby and Middlesbrough for the last spot. Wednesday have got to win their final two games against Preston and QPR and hope that results elsewhere go their way. But Bruce is not ready to give anything up just yet. He roared: "It's going to be interesting, and it will be nice to be in the mix because these players have been excellent since I came into the job here at the start of February. "If you look at it realistically, you'd say we will finish a couple of points off it. "But we are not going to go away. We're the team nobody wants to play at the moment, and losing only two of my 16 games in charge is a quite remarkable achievement by the team." First-half strikes by Barry Bannan and Lucas Joao condemned the Robins to a damaging defeat. Bruce's boys took the lead in the 17th minute with Bannan rifling a 25-yard drive into the top corner. Wednesday then doubled their advantage five minutes before the break when Joao lobbed advancing keeper Max O'Leary. The Robins battled back after the break, creating a number of good chances, but failed to make a dent in the deficit. City boss Lee Johnson admitted: "We didn't do enough early on against a good Wednesday side. "We can't keep conceding goals like that and giving ourselves mountains to climb. "We went for it in the second half but we didn't show enough composure to take three points."

Three wins for Jack pot

By TONY RUSHMER

JACK ROSS still believes three Sunderland wins can keep alive their automatic promotion dream.

The Black Cats looked set for a crucial win when Max Power fired home on 87 minutes — only for Posh striker Matt Godden to level in injury-time.

The Weariders are four points off second-placed Barnsley ahead of a crunch clash at home to Portsmouth on Saturday — and need the Tykes to slip up.

Mackems boss Ross said: "We need to be able to see the game out from that position when we have got a goal late on and we haven't done so. "My job now is to lift the players. We've got three games that we need to go and win."

"The situation has been taken out of our hands now. But if we win these three games, then we've got to see where that takes us."

"It's important that, by the time we come back in tomorrow, we refocus to go and do that."

"It's a quiet dressing room at the moment because they put that much into the game and to not get the three points from it is hard to take."

Power gave them the lead with an unstoppable 22-yard shot.

One Sunderland fan's celebrations were excessive and he was arrested for pitch incursion.

But Peterborough had the last laugh when Godden buried a superb low shot after darting on to sub Ivan Toney's pass.

Darren Ferguson's team are three points outside the top six with three games to play, the same as sixth-placed Doncaster.

Fergie said: "My players gave me everything."

"The big decisions in the game are so important and we didn't get one of them."

"We've got to win the next three games and then hope that we get a bit of luck."

HARRY REDKNAPP missed this five-goal thriller because he forgot it kicked off at 1pm.

But Southend fans will not forget their side's first win in 15 matches lifting them out of the bottom four.

Redknapp was brought in by new boss Kevin Bond to lift spirits — but a 2-0 lead thanks to first-half goals by Sam Mantom and Harry Bunn did that anyway, before Tim Dieng restored a two-goal cushion after the break.

Bond said: "I'll have a glass of wine after that — and maybe I need it. It's been too long without a win and it was especially good to do it at home."

John Brayford and Marcus Harness hit back but Burton boss Nigel Clough said: "To play as well as we have in the last two games and get no points is incredible."

POMPEY'S Captain Marvel kept his side on course for automatic promotion with an 83rd-minute winner.

Brett Pitman made it five goals in five games after Tom Naylor cancelled out a first-half strike by Jordy Hiwula for Coventry.

And the Portsmouth skipper, 31, roared: "I felt joy, relief, everything when I scored. It's still in our hands."

Portsmouth's seventh league win in a row kept them within two points of second-placed Barnsley — with a game in hand — and four behind leaders Luton, who take on Wimbledon tonight.

Boss Kenny Jackett added: "We've kept the pressure on."

Coventry's hopes of sneaking into the top six are now slim but they were buzzing when Hiwula turned and fired home with just nine minutes gone.

Naylor nodded a 66th-minute leveller from Lee Brown's corner and Pitman capped the comeback with his 13th goal of the season with a cracking left-footer from Ronan Curtis' cross seven minutes from time.

Coventry boss Mark Robins said: "We're disappointed."

"We were the better team in terms of football but they are one of the best second-half teams in the country."

Rochdale.....1

THRILLED Rochdale boss Brian Barry-Murphy hailed his players as they took a giant step towards safety.

Striker Ethan Hamilton hit the winner — a neat, left-footed chip — with eight minutes left as Dale moved four points clear of the drop zone with just two games to go.

Barry-Murphy said: "The players were magnificent once again and battled hard. They showed desire."

"We are nearly there and I am proud of them."

Rovers boss Graham Coughlan bemoaned a lack of cutting edge and said: "We had plenty of the ball but we need to be more clinical."

Blackpool.....2
Fleetwood.....1

MANAGER Terry McPhillips saluted his Blackpool battlers as they snatched a last-gasp victory.

Sub Nathan Delfouneso scored in the fourth and final minute of injury time.

Fleetwood looked to have salvaged a point after Ched Evans cancelled out Jay Spearing's penalty, given for a foul on Nya Kirby.

McPhillips said: "That's the spirit and I can't fault the lads for their effort, they were magnificent."

The Cod Army's Nathan Sheron was sent off for a challenge on Matty Virtue.

Boss Joey Barton said: "We just can't keep making these mistakes."

Shrewsbury.....2
Oxford Utd.....3

OXFORD manager Karl Robinson heaped praise on striker Gavin Whyte after his wonder hat-trick.

Whyte bagged goals on six, 72 and 78 minutes as ten-man United sealed a memorable comeback win.

Robinson said: "It was a brilliant hat-trick, we know he has this sort of performance in him."

Shrews hit back through an Oliver Norburn penalty fouled Luke Garbutt fouled Shaun Whalley, with Greg Doherty also notching.

U's Ahmed Kashi was sent off on 35 minutes for a poor challenge. Shrews boss Sam Ricketts said: "When you're 2-1 up at home, you expect to see it out."

Bradford.....1
Gillingham.....1

GILLINGHAM ensured safety with a low-key draw at relegated Bradford.

Steve Lovell's side had to come from behind after Kelvin Mellor headed in Billy Clarke's free-kick.

Brandon Hanlan forced home the equaliser when keeper Ben Wilson spilled Bradley Garmston's cross.

Lovell, who also saw Regan Charles-Cook hit the bar, said: "We're safe and we can now look forward to the last two games."

The Bantams avoided equalling a club-record eighth straight loss.

And boss Gary Bowyer said: "We weren't able to see it out but I'm pleased that we didn't lose."

JASON MCCARTHY'S superb free-kick pushed the sorry Saddlers deeper into the relegation mire.

When Adebayo Akinfenwa was fouled by Connor Johnson in the 54th minute, right-back McCarthy stepped up and belted home a dipping drive from 25 yards.

Furious Walsall fans chanted "We're s and we're sick of it" as they sit four points from safety.

Caretaker boss Martin O'Connor said: "I'm not going to have a go at the fans, they can't get behind the team if the players don't create anything."

The Chairboys climbed four points clear of danger. And chief Gareth Ainsworth said: "That was a fabulous free-kick by a fabulous player."

"How Jason is still playing down in League One is a mystery to me."

BARNLEY'S Cauley Woodrow has 15 league goals this term, more than in his previous four league seasons combined (14).

Charlton.....4
Scunthorpe.....0

CHARLTON stormed back into top gear to send Scunthorpe into the relegation zone.

The Addicks let slip an 11-game unbeaten run at Oxford, but ran riot here.

Boss Lee Bowyer said: "We were very good from start to finish. We dominated and thoroughly deserved the result."

Anfernee Dijksteel scored from eight yards and Joe Aribo headed in Ben Reeves' corner.

Aribo set up Igor Vetokele for the third before Lyle Taylor curled in a 20-yard free-kick.

Scunthorpe caretaker-boss Andy Dawson said: "Their quality told but, in terms of chances, it was even."

SEDDON... prayers

Seddon ritual so spiritual

By MATT TAYLOR

STEVE SEDDON has Bible readings on his shinpads — and prays he can save Wimbledon from the drop. And the Birmingham loanee abstained from treats for Lent.

Ahead of today's trip to leaders Luton, the wing-back, 21, said: "I gave up sweets, chocolates and my phone for Lent."

"I was having mangoes for the pre-match — but usually it is Creme Eggs! Those are harder to live without than the phone."

Seddon, who was born on Christmas Day, is now a committed Christian.

He said: "I wasn't brought up like it, I fell into it. I have Bible readings on my pads, things that represent me and what I want to do in life."

"Such as, 'I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me'."

"Do everything for the love of it, rather than the money or the praise."

When he arrived in January, the Dons looked doomed but are now one point from safety.

Seddon added: "We still believe and we are still working hard."

● DONCASTER skipper Tommy Rowe says the best is yet to come ahead of today's Accrington clash.

The midfielder has returned from injury and said: "I've got so much more to give and hopefully I can keep getting better."

Title lassoed by Cow-boys

DANNY COWLEY hailed his champs as they sealed the League Two title at a rocking Sincil Bank.

In front of a full house, Lincoln were frustrated as they failed to find a winner — but the result was good enough to start the party (below).

Imps boss Cowley said: "It's a great feeling, we are all delighted, we have worked really hard for this."

"It is more than just a season's worth of work and we are just proud that we have been able to get this wonderful football club over the line."

"This has been a whole club, a whole county, a whole city effort. We've said that a lot — but it has. Everybody has contributed."

On his players, Cowley added: "They have been brilliant."

"Their attitude and work ethic have been first class. There are no energy-sappers, no whingers, no moaners."

"There are no egos and everybody puts the team first. When you've got that, then you can achieve wonderful things."

Visiting keeper Scott Davies thwarted Michael O'Connor and Bruno Andrade, while Matt Gilks kept out Rovers' James Norwood.

Tranmere chief Micky Mellon said: "It was a big effort and a big day for us."

"I felt we didn't get caught up in any of the emotion of the day and we did our jobs."

Stendel banking on six points

By NOEL RICHARD

DANIEL STENDEL is confident six points from the last two games will earn his Barnsley side promotion.

Cauley Woodrow, Jacob Brown and Alex Mowatt all struck inside the opening 28 minutes to earn the Tykes a third straight win.

Stendel beamed: "That's our 21st clean sheet this season and I am very happy."

"We never give up and, if we win our last two, we have a big chance."

"This is my first season in England and it is exciting. I hope we have the success we deserve."

Woodrow crashed home his 18th goal of the season with 15 minutes gone after gathering Jordan Williams' pass and finding the bottom far corner of the net.

Barnsley's rapid start earned them a second in the 21st minute when Brown converted Dani Pinillos' cross at the back post.

The visitors were in dreamland on 28 minutes thanks to a stunning free-kick by Mowatt.

Plymouth keeper Kyle Letheren prevented further damage after denying Mike Bahre with a smart second-half save.

Barnsley striker Woodrow said:

"We played very well and took our chances early doors to see the game out."

"We have got ourselves in this position and got a fantastic opportunity to get to the Championship. We don't want this to pass us by."

Four defeats in a row have seen the Pilgrims slip to one place and one point above the drop zone.

Argyle boss Derek Adams said: "If we win our remaining games we will have done our job."

"Barnsley are a quality side and have outstanding ability throughout their team."

"They are one of the best sides we have played in this division and I wouldn't be surprised if they are playing in the Championship next season."

Jim's big tick

Morecambe..4 Cheltenham..0

JIM BENTLEY was full of praise for his Morecambe side after this thumping victory.

The Shrimps boss said: "It was a real carnival atmosphere today and the lads really responded."

"We put on a bit of a show, scored four and kept a clean sheet, which ticks all the boxes. It would be great if it was like this every week."

Robins manager Michael Duff said: "For one reason or another we just didn't turn up."

Aaron Collins missed a first-half penalty for the hosts before Vadaine Oliver, Kevin Ellison, Sam Lavelle and Collins all struck after the break.

DINO MAAMRIA raged at ref Ollie Yates after Boro were denied a late penalty. Exeter's Ryan Bowman scored five minutes before half-time to cancel out Kris Guthrie's 28th-minute opener for the home side. But Stevenage striker Guthrie was impeded by Dara O'Shea in stoppage time only for ref Yates to wave away furious appeals for a spot-kick.

Boss Maamria said: "All over the country, all over the world – that's a penalty. "I just don't think the referee had enough about him to give that."

Exeter boss Matt Taylor said: "On another day we might have nicked it."

Grimsby.....1
Carlisle.....0

CARLISLE gave themselves a play-off headache with some shoddy finishing.

Joe Grayson's injury-time winner left the Cumbrians two points outside the top seven with two to play.

And boss Steven Pressley confessed: "It's another opportunity that has passed us by."

"We lacked quality in the final third and made poor decisions."

On-loan Blackburn defender Grayson, 20, scored his first senior goal to earn the points.

Grimsby boss Michael Jolley said: "We're building for next year and we have an important summer coming up."

Swindon.....1
Crewe.....2

CHRIS PORTER grabbed a brace as Crewe gaffer David Artell saw red.

Porter gave the visitors a comfortable 2-0 half-time lead.

In the third minute he tucked the ball away from two yards before a carbon-copy second on the stroke of half-time.

Town's Michael Doughty pulled one back from the spot after Ryan Wintle fouled Ben House.

Artell was then sent to the stands after arguing with the ref when Porter was booked for diving.

He said: "I got a red for pointing out the obvious."

Town boss Richie Wellens added: "We'll go for promotion next season."

BEN BARCLAY'S rush of blood left proud Notts County staring into the non-league abyss for the first time in their history.

Founding members of the Football League in 1888, they have never been relegated from it.

Boss Neal Ardley said: "I don't know what he was doing, we could be down if we lose next week."

The score was poised at 1-1 after Ashley Nathaniel-George cancelled out Craig Mackail-Smith's strike.

Home boss Gaby Cioffi said: "We're still fighting after a tough season."

Yeovil.....1
Colchester.....1

TOM EASTMAN earned Colchester a crucial point to keep Yeovil in the mire.

The Glovers are second bottom, two points behind 22nd-placed Macclesfield with just two games left.

But boss Neale Marmon said: "There's a lot of hope now for us if we play like that."

U's keeper Dillon Barnes made a mistake for Jake Gray's 20-yard opener and was then sent off for kicking Tristan Abrahams.

But Eastman side-footed home Brennan Dickinson's 75th-minute corner.

U's boss John McGreal said of his keeper: "It has come about from frustration for the mistake."

Macclesfield.....0
Newport.....0

SOL CAMPBELL admitted his side "let themselves down" despite getting a vital point in their relegation dogfight.

Macclesfield remain two points ahead of Yeovil and Notts County.

And boss Campbell said: "The icing on the cake would have been scoring, as we had some really good opportunities."

"We've let ourselves down — we just needed a little more composure."

A win for the Exiles would have seen County go level with Exeter in the play-off race.

And boss Micky Flynn said: "Colchester have gone to Yeovil and drawn. It's tough. We know from past experience."

HARD-UP SHAKERS ON MOVE

By CHRIS HUGHES

RYAN LOWE saluted Bury's hard-up battlers after a comeback win lifted them into the top two.

The cash-strapped Shakers have not yet paid their players' wages this month.

But the team has not downed tools on the pitch as Chris Stokes, Danny Mayor and Nicky Maynard scored.

Boss Lowe said: "Nothing seemed to be going right for us but, fair play to the players, they got back into it brilliantly."

"I love it here and I know very well the players do, too. Some of them are quite emotionally drained, given the circumstances they're playing under.

"But credit to them all for showing fight, passion, and the sheer willpower to win."

"We had a few twitchy moments today but we've come through it once again."

Former Bury defender David Buchanan missed a chance early on before Northampton grabbed a 27th-minute lead when Andy Williams was left unmarked to head home Sam Foley's cross.

But Stokes levelled six minutes before half-time when he turned home Nicky Adams' cross, before Mayor's curler put the home side in front on 65 minutes.

Maynard made sure of the win in stoppage time.

Cobblers manager Keith Curle said: "The scoreline was a little harsh."

"We competed well against a really good Bury side but, once we conceded before half-time, I could see we could have a problem."

The Wheel deal

MK Dons.....1 Port Vale.....1

By BOB HAYES

DAVID WHEELER rescued Dons after the wheels looked like falling off their promotion bandwagon.

MK fell behind to Tom Conlon's fierce strike after Dons hitman Kieran Agard's first-half penalty – given for a 'dangerous' overhead kick – was saved.

But Wheeler, on loan from QPR, tapped in his second goal in two games to bag a precious point.

Sub Chuks Aneke was close to bagging a 75th-minute winner but saw his 16-yard shot hit a post. Dons boss Paul Tisdale, whose side now face Colchester and Mansfield, said: "We missed our chances and I'm disappointed with the goal we conceded."

"We're in with a shout with two games to go and we need to win both of them."

Vale chief John Askey said: "I'm really happy with the point. When we've got nothing to play for, to put in a performance like that is full credit to the players."

Forest Green.....2
Cambridge.....1

FOREST GREEN booked their play-off spot with this deserved victory.

Christian Doidge's late winner also kept alive their top-three hopes.

After a fourth straight win, Rovers boss Mark Cooper said: "We've got a couple of games to go so we could still do it."

Rovers led through Gavin Gunning's 24th-minute header but Cambridge levelled through Paul Lewis on 66 minutes.

U's boss Colin Calderwood said: "We've still got to do a professional job in the final couple of games."

Never too Old

Oldham.....3 Mansfield.....2

OLDHAM kept their play-off hopes alive with a superb win over promotion favourites Mansfield.

Latics are four points adrift with three games left and interim manager Pete Wild said: "There's only one reason why Sky came and it wasn't for us. It would have been a travesty if we hadn't won."

"Mansfield, in my opinion, are the best team in the league but they came up against a very good side. Our season continues now and we've nothing to lose."

Oldham's Gevaro Nepomuceno opened the scoring and Mohamed Maouche extended the lead. Stags' Tyler Walker hit back before Nepomuceno's second.

Neal Bishop made it 3-2, with Danny Rose's late equaliser ruled out for offside.

Stags boss David Flitcroft said: "It wasn't offside. The linesman has panicked under pressure and guessed at the decision. Three-three would have been a just result but it was brilliant from both teams."

NON-LEAGUE

LEYTON ORIENT are on the verge of returning to the Football League after a 0-0 draw at rivals SOLIHULL.

The O's are three points clear at the top of the National League with one game remaining.

And that means a home point next Saturday against already-relegated Braintree will see them promoted.

Solihull remain third, while second-placed SALFORD fluffed their lines with a 1-0 loss at home to FYLDE.

Paul Doswell brought down the curtain on his 11-year reign as SUTTON boss after their 2-2 draw with MAIDSTONE.

● Former Norwich striker Jamie Cureton, 43, marked his 1,000th club appearance with a brace in Bishop's Cleeve's 3-2 win over Brightlingsea in the Bostik Premier.
